"What a curious feeling!" said Alice. "I must be shutting up like a telescope!"

— indeed! She was now only ten inches high, and her head touched the ceiling of the passage. She was so much pleased at the thought that she was now the right size for the little door into that lovely garden.

— and that nothing more happened, she decided to go at once; but, alas for poor Alice! When she had found the little golden key, she found she could not get back to the table for it, she found she could not see it quite plainly through the glass, and she could not climb up one of the legs of the table, but it was all over when she had tired herself out with trying, she sat down and cried.

"— me in crying like that!" said Alice to herself. "I must advise you to leave off this minute!" She was so much pleased with her own very good advice (though she very seldom followed it) that she scolded herself so severely as to dry up her eyes.

— Well on a little glass box that was lying under the table, she found it and found in it a very small cake, on which the words "EAT ME" were beautifully marked in currants. "Well, I'll eat it," said Alice, "and if it makes me grow larger, I can reach the key; and if it makes me grow smaller, I can creep under the door; so either way I'll get into the garden, and I don't care which happens!"
