Practice Research for the Twenty-First Century Anne E. Fortune, Philip McCallion, Katharine Briar-Lawson, 2010-09-21
Social work professionals must demonstrate their effectiveness to legislators and governments, not to mention clients and incoming practitioners. A thorough evaluation of the activities, ethics, and outcomes of social work practice is critical to maintaining investment and interest in the profession and improving the lives of underserved populations. Incorporating the concerns of a new century into a consideration of models for practice research, this volume builds on the visionary work of William J. Reid (1928-2003) who transformed social work research through empirically based and task-centered approaches and more recently synthesized intervention knowledge for framing future study. This collection reviews the task-centered model and other contemporary Evidence-Based Practice models for working with individuals, families, groups, communities, and organizations. Essays demonstrate the value of these pragmatic approaches in the United States and international settings. Contributors summarize state-of-the-art methods in several key fields of service, including children and families, aging, substance abuse, and mental health. They also evaluate the research movement itself, outlining an agenda for today's sociopolitical landscape and the profession. This volume inspires practice research to prioritize evidence as a base for the profession. Advocacy Practice for Social Justice Richard Hoefer, 2019-02-01
Since the publication of its first edition in 2005, Advocacy Practice for Social Justice has served as a clear, comprehensive, and practical resource for social work courses in advocacy, community practice, and macro practice. Now in its fourth edition, this text provides extensive information on the value base for advocacy, an examination of why people get involved in advocacy, and step-by-step instructions for social workers and others who want to impact laws, regulations, and policies at any level. Bearing in mind the National Association of Social Workers' Code of Ethics requirements to advocate on behalf of vulnerable populations, readers learn that advocacy is a problem-solving technique similar to that used in social work practice of all types. The book moves through the stages of advocacy: getting involved, understanding the issue, planning, advocating through education, persuasion, and negotiation, presenting information effectively, monitoring and evaluating results, and integrating advocacy into a social worker's everyday practice. The fourth edition's inclusion of new topics and solid foundation in social work values make it a must-read for social work students and practitioners working diligently to maintain the profession's focus on successful advocacy for social justice.

Political Social Work Practice Brendan Young, 2024-01-03
Few social work students express an interest in politics, but now more than ever, those voices are necessary in the political arena. Social programs and policies central to the client systems of social workers are determined in the political space. Brendan Young has written this book to inspire students to bring the unique value system embraced by social workers to the political process Like all titles in the Social Work Modules series the chapters in Political Social Work Practice follow courses in the standard social work curriculum This allows the book to be used as supplementary reading to add a political component to any social work course as well as in a stand alone course on political social work

Social Work and the Environment Michael Kim Zapf, 2009 This ground breaking new work provides a detailed and extensive comparison of how the physical environment has been conceptualized in social work and other professions and offers a new and attractive foundational metaphor for social work The author acknowledges the need for greater awareness and action regarding environmental impacts and the book promotes more comprehensive notions of responsibility identity and stewardship that lead to a dynamic metaphor of people as place as the foundation for relevant social work practice in the early 21st century Why is that a profession with a declared focus on person in environment has been so silent on the environmental crisis Mainstream social work theory has narrowed the understanding of environment to include merely the social environment but this approach is no longer sufficient for participation in multi disciplinary efforts to tackle urgent environmental issues Transformative notions of responsibility identity and stewardship have been developed on the fringes of our professional community rural remote social workers Aboriginal social workers and international and spiritual social workers They must now move to the core of the profession
