European Traditions in Civil Procedure C. H. van Rhee, 2005 European co operation has resulted in many new and challenging opportunities for legal scholars who since the so called codification period have become used to operating in a purely national context This applies also to scholars in the field of civil procedure who for a considerable period of time have resisted leaving the purely national domain These scholars have devoted a great deal of attention to the question whether or not harmonisation of civil procedural law is a feasible option and if so in what manner harmonisation should be achieved The contributors to this book seek to further the harmonisation debate by exploring some of the main trends in the development of civil procedural law during the last two centuries in several European countries Germany Austria Switzerland France England and Wales The Netherlands and Belgium Two of the central issues that are addressed by the contributors are the extent to which the various procedural models have influenced each other and the extent to which common traditions in civil procedural law may be distinguished in Europe Each general chapter in this book is supplemented by three chapters devoted to specific procedural topics Conciliation Party Interrogation as Evidence and the Role of the Judge In addition extensive bibliographical references are included

Dimensions of Evidence in European Civil Procedure Vesna Rijavec, Tomaž Keresteš, 2015-12-29 Greater efficiency in civil dispute resolution is very much dependent on organized but fair fact finding Under European law however no clear cut categorisation of means of evidence exists as yet and significantly diverging interpretations persist of what is considered evidence in the sense of the foundational Council Regulation EC No 1206/2001 EER The EER fails to provide comprehensive rules for many other aspects of evidence taking pointing instead to national legislation for solutions As long as evidentiary rules remain different from country to country there is an inherent risk of conflict of laws between different systems in the course of cooperation between courts in cross border matters leading to mistrust amongst judiciary and other participants in the proceedings Focusing on national rules and using a comparative method which takes into consideration legal experiences from all legal circles in the EU this book explains and analyses how the law of evidence works in Europe today The authors draw on the vast base of relevant information collected in twenty seven Member States by national reporters Following the classical enumeration of types of evidence production of documents examination of witnesses expert evidence inspection by the judge and examination of the parties chapters encompass such issues and topics as the following judicial cooperation in cross border cases general principles in evidence taking the right to be heard oral vs written form directness of evidence burden of proof judges case management powers regarding evidence means of evidence extent of influence of traditional principles and evidentiary rules on electronic evidence application of communication technology in cross border proceedings legal costs language inadmissible evidence and instances in which a court can refuse a request for evidence The authors offer well grounded recommendations on requested judge s entitlements direct and convenient communication cost issues revised provisions concerning language obstacles unification of presumptions and much more Armed with the wide ranging knowledge presented here practitioners handling civil cases anywhere in Europe will derive great practical benefit from this book As a masterful synthesis of how evidence is used in national courts in EU Member States and of how that use is changing the book will be greatly valued as a unique resource by legal scholars and academics With featured recommendations it can contribute to the development of mutual trust among the national courts inside the EU as well as trust among policymakers and national courts

Does Regulation Kill Jobs? Cary Coglianese,Adam M. Finkel,Christopher Carrigan,2014-01-06 As millions of Americans struggle to find work in the wake of the Great Recession politicians from both parties look to regulation in search of an economic cure Some claim that burdensome regulations undermine private sector competitiveness and job growth while others argue that tough new regulations actually create jobs at the same time that they provide other benefits Does Regulation Kill Jobs reveals the complex reality of regulation that supports neither partisan view Leading legal scholars economists political scientists and policy analysts show that individual regulations can at times induce employment shifts across firms sectors and regions but regulation overall is neither a prime job killer nor a key job creator The challenge for policymakers is to look carefully at individual regulatory proposals to discern any job shifting they may cause and then to make regulatory decisions sensitive to anticipated employment effects Drawing on their analyses contributors recommend methods for obtaining better estimates of job impacts when evaluating regulatory costs and benefits They also assess possible ways of reforming regulatory institutions and processes to take better account of employment effects in policy decision making Does Regulation Kill Jobs tackles what has become a heated partisan issue with exactly the kind of careful analysis policymakers need in order to make better policy decisions providing insights that will benefit both politicians and citizens who seek economic growth as well as the protection of public health and safety financial security environmental sustainability and other civic goals Contributors Matthew D Adler Joseph E Aldy Christopher Carrigan Cary Coglianese E Donald Elliott Rolf F re Ann Ferris Adam M Finkel Wayne B Gray Shawna Grosskopf Michael A Livermore Brian F Mannix Jonathan S Masur Al McGartland Richard Morgenstern Carl A Pasurka Jr William A Pizer Eric A Posner Lisa A Robinson Jason A Schwartz Ronald J Shadbegian Stuart Shapiro Rock Slope Engineering Duncan C.
