Safe, Supportive, and Inclusive Learning Environments for Young People in Crisis and Trauma Patty Towl, Sheryl A. Hemphill, 2020-06-02 Children and young people from diverse populations are statistically more at risk of exclusion; however, education providers can make a difference to all children and young persons' learning outcomes no matter what their personal circumstances. To achieve this, not only must educators form closer and more authentic relationships with these children and their communities, but the governments that fund learning environments must also be prepared to provide adequate resourcing and training opportunities. Safe, Supportive, and Inclusive Learning Environments for Young People in Crisis and Trauma addresses both the general and specific issues that may prevent children and young people from diverse populations from being safe, supported, and included in learning environments. Some chapters focus on general factors that contribute to both inclusion and exclusion at early childhood and in formal school environments, while others present research-based best practice and practical advice to enable good education outcomes for indigenous, migrant, and LGBTQI children and those who experience mental health problems, drug misuse, and abuse. Lastly, the book includes information about how to negotiate and set up programmes that have been shown to be effective with communities that differ from the dominant culture. This book provides practitioners in education health and social work with information and practical advice on how to retain all children and young people in early childhood formal school education and tertiary settings

Genetic Geographies Catherine Nash, 2015-04-01 What might be wrong with genetic accounts of personal or shared ancestry and origins Genetic studies are often presented as valuable ways of understanding where we come from and how people are related In Genetic Geographies Catherine Nash pursues their troubling implications for our perception of sexual and national as well as racial difference Bringing an incisive geographical focus to bear on new genetic histories and genetic genealogy Nash explores the making of ideas of genetic ancestry indigeneity and origins the global human family and national genetic heritage In particular she engages with the science culture and commerce of ancestry in the United States and the United Kingdom including National Geographic's Genographic Project and the People of the British Isles project Tracing the tensions and contradictions between the emphasis on human genetic similarity and shared ancestry and the attention given to distinctive patterns of relatedness and different ancestral origins Nash challenges the assumption that the concepts of shared ancestry are necessarily progressive She extends this scrutiny to claims about the natural differences between the sexes and the nature of reproduction in studies of the geography of human genetic variation Through its focus on sex nation and race and its novel spatial lens Genetic Geographies provides a timely critical guide to what happens when genetic science maps relatedness National Library of Medicine Audiovisuals Catalog National Library of Medicine (U.S.), 1977
