(b) Spleen: This organ is where B cells mature.

(c) Bone marrow: This is where all blood cells, including immune cells, are produced.

6. The immune system is also composed of several types of tissues, including:

(a) Lymph nodes: These are small, bean-shaped organs that filter out pathogens.

(b) Tonsils: These are large, fleshy organs that are located in the throat.

(c) Appendix: This is a small, finger-like projection at the end of the large intestine.

7. The immune system is also composed of several types of cells, including:

(a) Neutrophils: These are the most common type of white blood cell.

(b) Eosinophils: These cells are responsible for killing parasites.

(c) Basophils: These cells are responsible for releasing histamine.

(d) Mast cells: These cells are responsible for releasing histamine and other inflammatory mediators.

(e) Monocytes: These cells are responsible for becoming macrophages and dendritic cells.

8. The immune system is also composed of several types of molecules, including:

(a) Complement: This is a group of proteins that work together to kill pathogens.

(b) Interferon: This is a protein that is released by cells and acts as a signaling molecule.

(c) Tumor necrosis factor: This is a protein that is released by cells and acts as a signaling molecule.
