

Diamond Method

Basic chainmaille tutorial for beginners....

(using a simple method to make starting easy and makes mistakes almost impossible!)

1. Start with a chain (I used two colors to serve as a reference)

2. Pull one ring up and add a new one that goes through the two rings next to it. This step can be tricky and you must make sure it looks exactly as pictured for this method to work.

3. Add another ring to the chain almost exactly repeating the last step. This is the most basic step and will be repeated at the start of each new row.

4. Add a ring to the top and bottom rings. Make sure that it passes in and out of each ring as pictured, but this should be a relatively easy step.

5. As in step 2 and 3 add yet another ring to start a new row. If you run out of chain just add more to your chain as you will likely use it when repeating this step.

6. Repeat what you did in step 4 twice by adding rings to each side as you go down the sides. Repeat step 5 and 6 to keep growing the diamond. If you want to make a bracelet then simply stop adding rings to the tip of the diamond (step 6) when it is as wide as you want the bracelet.
