American settlers arrived in Seattle in the 1850s the surrounding old growth forests were rapidly harvested for lumber causing environmental degradation and displacing native peoples Conflicts about the future of Pacific Northwest forests have continued since then Only recently have academics government agencies industry small private landowners tribes and environmental organizations come together to develop plans to protect the remaining old growth forests wildlife streams and fish as well as providing environmentally friendly forest products Practicing sustainable forestry maintaining healthy forests that are less susceptible to fire insects and diseases and fostering public enjoyment are now the main goals of forest management However conflicts still exist and with climate change a looming threat it is important to realize that forests give us much more than lumber Robert L Edmonds professor emeritus at the School of Environmental and Forest Sciences
