Digital Rebels Haroon Ullah, 2018-11-27 A lively up to date investigation of the expanding influence of social media in the Islamic world The role of social media in the events of the Arab Spring and its aftermath in the Muslim world has stimulated much debate yet little in the way of useful insight Now Haroon Ullah a scholar and diplomat with deep knowledge of politics and societies in the Middle East South Asia and Southeast Asia draws the first clear picture of the unprecedented impact of Twitter Facebook and other means of online communication on the recent revolutions that blazed across Muslim nations The author carefully analyzes the growth of social media throughout the Muslim world tracing how various organizations learned to employ such digital tools to grow networks recruit volunteers and disseminate messages In Egypt where young people rose against the regime in Pakistan where the youth fought against the intelligence and military establishments and in Syria where underground Islamists had to switch alliances digital communications played key roles Ullah demonstrates how social media have profoundly changed relationships between regimes and voters though not always for the better Looking forward he identifies trends across the Muslim world and the implications of these for regional and international politics

The Digital City Germaine R. Halegoua,2020-01-21 Shows how digital media connects people to their lived environments Every day millions of people turn to small handheld screens to search for their destinations and to seek recommendations for places to visit They may share texts or images of themselves and these places en route or after their journey is complete We don't consciously reflect on these activities and probably don't associate these practices with constructing a sense of place Critics have argued that digital media alienates users from space and place but this book argues that the exact opposite is true that we habitually use digital technologies to re-embed ourselves within urban environments The Digital City advocates for the need to rethink our everyday interactions with digital infrastructures navigation technologies and social media as we move through the world Drawing on five case studies from global and mid-sized cities to illustrate the concept of re-placing Germaine R Halegoua shows how different populations employ urban broadband networks social and locative media platforms digital navigation smart cities and creative placemaking initiatives to turn urban spaces into places with deep meanings and emotional attachments Through timely narratives of everyday urban life Halegoua argues that people use digital media to create a unique sense of place within rapidly changing urban environments and that a sense of place is integral to understanding contemporary relationships with digital media

Transmission Peter d'Agostino, David Tafler, 1995 The essays in this volume investigate the impact of all media including the emerging technologies on the social cultural economic and political climate in the context of aesthetic values and issues of gender race and class Transmission examines the array of forces moving the contemporary video landscape forward comparing the past with the present as well as the future as it looks at the impact of video on commercial television the relationship of media to the social causes it misrepresents and the effects of new communication tools on participating constituents

Libraries and Archives Tomas Lidman, 2012-06-22 Libraries and Archives analyses the facts and arguments behind an increasing debate as to what extent libraries and archives are fulfilling the same missions Despite the fact that they have different legal statuses legal frameworks and the work flow looks very different some politicians and bureaucrats think that there is much to gain if the two institutions work closely together or even merge To understand the present situation it is important to have an understanding of the role of libraries and archives and their shared history Therefore the development up to the present day is analysed in the first chapters of the book The book stimulates debate and brings forth valuable facts about the topic The main focus is on national libraries and national and regional archives from an international point of view Offers a simple but comprehensive background to explain key issues behind the current debate Provides librarians and archivists with arguments The author has more than 40 years experience on the national and international archive and library scene

In History Marcus Blackwell, 2024-10-14 Grand Events in History explores how monumental historical events shape the lives of ordinary people across the globe focusing on the rise and fall of empires technological revolutions and global conflicts This engaging book argues that seemingly distant historical occurrences have profound and lasting impacts on individuals and societies worldwide often in unexpected ways By examining these interconnected themes readers gain insight into the forces that have shaped our modern world and the patterns that may influence our future The book's unique approach lies in its global perspective and emphasis on the interconnectedness of events across time and space It draws on a wide range of primary and secondary sources including official documents personal accounts and cutting edge research from fields such as data science and network analysis This interdisciplinary approach provides a holistic view of human history exploring how historical events influence social structures economic systems and collective psychology Structured into three main sections Grand Events in History progresses from ancient civilizations to modern superpowers examines technological innovations from the printing press to the internet and analyzes global conflicts and their far reaching consequences Written in an accessible yet scholarly tone the book balances academic rigor with engaging storytelling making it appealing to a broad audience seeking to understand long term trends and their implications in our interconnected world Promotional Culture and Convergence Helen Powell, 2013-04-17 The rapid growth of promotional material through the internet social media and entertainment culture has created consumers who are seeking out their own information to guide their purchasing decisions Promotional Culture and Convergence analyses the environments necessary for creating a culture of collaboration with consumers and critically engages with key areas of contemporary promotional development including promotional culture's primary industries including advertising marketing PR and branding and how are they informed by changes in consumer behaviour and market conditions how industries are adapting in the digital age to attract both audiences and advertising revenue the evolving dialogues between new consumers and producers and promotional industries Ten contributions from leading theorists on contemporary promotional culture presents an indispensable guide to this creative and dynamic field and include detailed historical analysis in depth case studies and global examples of promotion through TV magazines newspapers and cinema

Thinking Creatively in Turbulent Times Howard F. Didsbury, Jr., Howard F. Didsbury, 2004 This outstanding collection of essays offers thought provoking insights on a range of future shaping issues such as harnessing the powers of a coming digital transformation creating more livable cities dealing with the impacts of immigration transforming school systems to meet the needs of the future economy solving the drug abuse problem through systems thinking and overcoming traps in thinking about the future Feminist in a Software Lab Tara McPherson, 2018-02-19 For over a dozen years the Vectors Lab has experimented with digital scholarship through its online publication Vectors and through Scalar a multimedia authoring platform The history of this software lab intersects a much longer tale about computation in the humanities as well as tensions about the role of theory in related projects Tara McPherson considers debates around the role of cultural theory within the digital humanities and addresses Gary Hall's claim that the goals of critical theory and of quantitative or computational analysis may be irreconcilable or at the very least require far more time and care. She then asks what it might mean to design from conception digital tools and applications that emerge from contextual concerns of cultural theory and in particular from a feminist concern for difference. This path leads back to the Vectors Lab and its ongoing efforts at the intersection of theory and praxis.

Mapping Black Women's Geographies

Kimberly Blockett, 2024-08-09. Spanning three centuries, this book demonstrates a variety of archival practices to tell more expansive stories about Black women. It examines the life-writing records and ephemera of Black women such as political reformer Sydna E. R. Francis, educators Edmonia Highgate and Lucy F. Simms, travel writer Nancy Prince, poet June Jordan, novelist Jesmyn Ward, and self-liberator Matilda Hawkins. Tyler, enslaved by her own Jesuit church at St. Louis University. The contributors use oral histories, data visualization, and biographical documents and narratives to map these and countless anonymized stories across geographic locations. Tracking the voluntary and forced movement of Black women alongside the places and spaces they inhabit gives us richer, more contextualized histories. The authors probe and answer how these women moved through and beyond systemic barriers and physical dangers while placing themselves at the center of change. The stories crystalize the joys, horrors, quotidian experiences, and endurance of marginalized lives. Each chapter illustrates ways to build archival and theoretical spaces that interrogate the many ways that Black women have navigated formidable and dangerous lands. This interdisciplinary volume will be of interest to students and researchers of comparative literature, gender studies, and Black studies. The chapters in this book were originally published as a special issue of Auto Biography Studies. Elysium's Taxman Briony Freeman,
