The Next Frontier David T Johnson, Franklin E Zimring, 2009-02-02 Today two thirds of the world s nations have abolished the death penalty either officially or in practice due mainly to the campaign to end state executions led by Western European nations Will this success spread to Asia where over 95 percent of executions now occur Do Asian values and traditions support capital punishment or will development and democratization end executions in the world s most rapidly developing region David T Johnson an expert on law and society in Asia and Franklin E Zimring a senior authority on capital punishment combine detailed case studies of the death penalty in Asian nations with cross national comparisons to identify the critical factors for the future of Asian death penalty policy The clear trend is away from reliance on state execution and many nations with death penalties in their criminal codes rarely use it Only the hard line authoritarian regimes of China Vietnam Singapore and North Korea execute with any frequency and when authoritarian states experience democratic reforms the rate of executions drops sharply as in Taiwan and South Korea Debunking the myth of Asian values Johnson and Zimring demonstrate that politics rather than culture or tradition is the major obstacle to the end of executions Carefully researched and full of valuable lessons The Next Frontier is the authoritative resource on the death penalty in Asia for scholars policymakers and advocates around the world

Americans in China Terry Lautz, 2022-01-10 Americans in China tells the dramatic stories of individual women and men who encountered the People s Republic of China as adversaries and emissaries mediators and advocates interpreters and reporters soldiers scientists entrepreneurs and scholars In Americans in China Terry Lautz provides a series of biographical portraits of Americans who have lived and worked in China from before the Communist era to the present The pathbreaking experiences of these men and women provide unique insights and deeply human perspectives on issues that have shaped US engagement with the People s Republic politics diplomacy education business art law journalism and human rights For each of these Americans China was more than just another place it was an idea a cause a revolution a civilization Some of them grew up in China while others were motivated by curiosity and adventure Some believed Red China was an existential threat while others looked to the People's Republic as a socialist utopia. Still others including a number of Chinese Americans worked to improve US-China relations for personal or professional reasons. Looming over their narratives is the quandary of whether divergent Chinese and Western worldviews could find common ground. Was it best to abide by Chinese norms taking into account China's unique history and culture? Or should individual civil and human rights be defended as universal? Would China move in the direction of Western-style liberal democracy? Or was the Communist Party destined to follow an authoritarian path? The figures in this book had distinctive answers to such questions. Their stories hold up a mirror to our two societies helping to explain how we have arrived at the present moment.

The Social Construction of SARS John H. Powers, Xiaosui Xiao, 2008-11-12 When the SARS virus began its spread from southern China around the world in spring 2003 it caught regional and international health officials by surprise. The SARS epidemic itself lasted for only a few months whereas its treatment in communicative terms keeps providing us with important lessons that can prepare us all for the much larger pandemic that many are predicting will eventually occur. While the medical aspects of SARS are now relatively well understood the discursive rhetorical dimensions are much less so. As an international epidemic SARS arrived in a number of distinctive societies with the result that different communities handled the crisis in different ways some far more effectively than others. Accordingly the 12 chapters in The Social Construction of SARS are studies of how a major health-related crisis was understood and dealt with from a communicative perspective in such diverse places as Hong Kong mainland China Singapore Taiwan Canada and the United States during the SARS outbreak.

An Awkward Embrace Dan Blumenthal, Phillip Swagel, 2012 In Awkward Embrace Phillip Swagel applies his experience at the Treasury Department to show the reader why America's economic relationship with China has been a beneficial one and details what needs to happen for this trend to continue. Daniel Blumenthal a former official specializing in Asia at the Department of Defense is far less optimistic when examining the military diplomatic and security ties the United States has or lacks with China. China's overall view of the West and especially of America is one of hostility and suspicion. Furthermore China has engaged in military diplomatic and human rights actions that are objectionable to a nation such as the United States which seeks to encourage the establishment of responsible government worldwide. The tension here is real: how can the United States manage this relationship in a way that keeps its economic engagement with China on a steady course but likewise protects its national security interests? Blumenthal and Swagel offer three possible paths for the U.S.-China relationship. In all of them they strive to demonstrate how internal forces are shaping China's interactions with other nations and furthermore how US leaders can attempt to attain a world order that includes a strong China that contributes positively while nonetheless preparing for the worst case scenario of China engaging in more assertive and destabilizing behavior.
