Civilized Oppression And Moral Relations Victims Fallibility And The Moral Community:

Civilized Oppression and Moral Relations Jean Harvey, 2015 There are significant differences between civilized oppression and violent oppression and these differences show not only in the phenomena involved but also in the nature of those who actively contribute to the two phenomena contributing agents Fair characterizations of the agents of civilized oppression often require very different descriptions from those applying to violent oppressors Many of the failings behind civilized oppression are shared by both the contributing agents and a large number of the victims Often it is the privileged social position of the agents that allows those failings to have such a serious impact whereas the same failings in the victims may be fairly innocuous though they are not always This book is alert to this and other differences between civilized and violent oppression Jean Harvey examines what the moral relations should be between the key players in civilized oppression the agents victims and bystanders

Reconsidering Neighbourhoods and Living with Dementia: Spaces, Places, and People John Keady, 2023-10-19

This book holds the story of a monumental research effort. It provides a moving, thoughtful understanding of what neighbourhood means and is a beacon for efforts aimed at improving the quality of life of all involved. Steven R. Sabat, Professor Emeritus of Psychology, Georgetown University, Washington D.C., USA. It is indicative reading for educators, researchers, clinicians, and policy makers nationally and internationally. By grounding the underpinning research in the lived experience of people with dementia, the book's appeal extends to voluntary and community groups. Reading it is a must.

Assumpta Ryan, Professor of Ageing and Health, Ulster University, UK. A remarkable contribution to the Reconsidering Dementia series. Bob Woods, Emeritus Professor, Bangor University, UK. This book provides research-based insights into the lived experience of dementia, aging in place, and the use of participatory and creative social research approaches in the field of dementia studies. For the first time, the key findings of one of the UK's largest funded social science research projects, the Neighbourhoods study, are assembled into one accessibly written blueprint for dementia care, aiding better understanding of the place and position of those living with dementia in the home and neighbourhood context. Reconsidering Neighbourhoods and Living with Dementia highlights the importance of home for people living with dementia and that neighbourhoods are seen to be relational, virtual, technological, connected, lived, remembered, and imagined, and to exist within and across time. The book is organised under five key parts: The Lived Neighbourhood, Neighbourhoods Measurement and Technology, Neighbourhoods and Big Data, Personal Well-Being, and Neighbourhood Programme Support. Bringing it Together and Future Directions. This comprehensive book is appropriate to a wide range of readers and disciplines, including those living with dementia, the related health and voluntary professions, family carers, practitioners, academics, and students undertaking a variety of courses aligned to gerontology, dementia studies, and human geography. The Reconsidering Dementia Series is an interdisciplinary series published by Open University Press that covers contemporary issues to challenge and engage readers in thinking deeply about the topic. The dementia field has developed rapidly in its scope and practice over the past ten years, and books in this series will unpack not only what this means for the student, academic, and practitioner, but also for all those affected by dementia. Series Editors: Dr Keith Oliver and Professor Dawn Brooker. MBE John Keady is a mental health nurse who has been involved in dementia care for over 30 years. Since 2006, he has held a joint appointment between the University of Manchester and the Greater Manchester Mental Health NHS Foundation Trust.
