

An aerial photograph of a wind farm in a lush green landscape. Several white wind turbines are visible, with one in the foreground and others further back. The landscape is a mix of green fields and yellowish-brown fields, with a blue lake in the distance under a blue sky with scattered clouds. A red and black vertical bar is on the left side of the image. A semi-transparent black rectangle with a red top bar is in the center, containing the title text. A red dotted pattern is in the bottom left corner.

Carbon Strategies How Leading Companies Are Reducing Their Climate Change Footprint:

Carbon Strategies Andrew J. Hoffman, 2007 A clear practical guide to sustainable climate policy for business leaders and corporate change makers Climate Change, Capitalism, and Corporations Christopher Wright, Daniel Nyberg, 2015-09-23 Climate change is one of the greatest threats facing humanity a definitive manifestation of the well worn links between progress and devastation This book explores the complex relationship that the corporate world has with climate change and examines the central role of corporations in shaping political and social responses to the climate crisis The principal message of the book is that despite the need for dramatic economic and political change corporate capitalism continues to rely on the maintenance of business as usual The authors explore the different processes through which corporations engage with climate change Key discussion points include climate change as business risk corporate climate politics the role of justification and compromise and managerial identity and emotional reactions to climate change Written for researchers and graduate students this book moves beyond descriptive and normative approaches to provide a sociologically and critically informed theory of corporate responses to climate change The Making of Low Carbon Economies Heather Lovell, 2014-12-17 The Making of Low Carbon Economies looks at how more than two decades of sustained effort at climate change mitigation has resulted in a variety of new practices rules and ways of doing things a period of active construction of low carbon economies From outer space observations of the carbon in tropical forests to carbon financial reporting and insulating solid masonry walls these diverse things activities and objects are integral to how climate change has been brought into being as a problem The book takes a fresh look at society's response to climate change by examining a diverse array of empirical sites where climate change is being made real through its incorporation into everyday lives a process of stitching climate concerns into the discourse and practices of already existing economies as well as creating new economies The Making of Low Carbon Economies adds fresh insights to economic sociology and science and technology studies scholarship on the multiple origins and heterogeneous operation of markets demonstrating the constraints and opportunities of an economic framing of the problem of climate change It covers the obvious and now well researched topic of carbon markets as well as new more unusual material on the low carbon reframing of already existing markets and economies

Climate Change and the 2030 Corporate Agenda for Sustainable Development Maria Alejandra Gonzalez-Perez,Liam Leonard,2016-12-21 This volume explores the meaning of the Paris Climate Agreement 2015 for business it analyses its challenges and implications and establishes required actions by the private sector in order to address climate change We include contributions from diverse locations and disciplines on the challenges this poses for businesses across the globe

Corporate Regulation for Climate Change Mitigation in Africa Kikelomo O. Kila,2022-09-08 This book critically analyses the prospects of overhauling the legal framework of climate change regulation of corporations in African state It adopts the dilute interventionism regulatory framework to tackle the culture of regulatory resistance by corporations in Africa Over the course of this volume Kikelomo O Kila critiques the climate change legal framework in all 53 African states and conducts an in depth case study of the two largest economies in Africa Nigeria and South Africa to highlight the commonality of the problems in Africa and the potential for the dilute interventionism paradigm to significantly address these problems The book establishes why African states should directly intervene through legislative mechanisms to compel corporations to incorporate climate change mitigation in their business activities It proposes that this direct intervention should comprise a blend of prescriptive and facilitative mechanisms structured in a dilute interventionism regulatory model Overall this volume argues that implementing this model requires the institution of a strong and independent regulator with a veto firewall protection system that guarantees its de facto independence from government and external influences Corporate Regulation for Climate Change Mitigation in Africa will be of great interest to climate change stakeholders at the international regional and domestic levels policymakers regulatory practitioners and legal experts on corporate regulation It will also be an insightful resource for students and scholars of climate change and environmental law policy and governance

The Long Hedge Jason West,2017-09-08 Part of the Greenleaf Publishing Responsible Investment Series Mitigating and adapting to risks and changing circumstances is a natural part of doing business But methods of mitigating and adapting can be quite different in terms of time cost and observed impacts The impacts of mitigation activities are more immediate while the benefits of adaptation activities may take many years to take effect Nowhere is this difference more apparent than in the case of the corporate response to climate change In the context of climate change adaptation is the process of changing behaviour in response to actual or expected climate change impacts Climate change adaptation is now emerging as a critical partner to mitigation and indeed may even become the primary protection mechanism for future generations In this unique book Jason West provides a comprehensive assessment of the management of climate change adaptation in the corporate sector The book provides a formal overview of the range of approaches available along with a series of practical case studies and examples that can be used by companies and other organizations to identify assess and manage climate change adaptation A major focus is on the financial and investment implications of climate change adaptation West examines how firms can evaluate the investment decisions associated with long term climate change adaptation measures including how such investments can be valued and funded the appropriate accounting treatment of such measures and appropriate risk management and governance practices in relation to such measures The book also considers the needs and interests of investors and other stakeholders and considers how they can assess the adequacy and appropriateness of corporate action on climate change The Long Hedge will be essential reading and a key text for risk practitioners investors financiers scholars and policy makers in the field of climate change

The Routledge Companion to Reinventing Management Education Chris Steyaert,Timon Beyes,Martin Parker,2016-06-17 The position and role of the business school and its educational programmes have become increasingly prominent yet also questioned and contested What management education entails and how it is enacted has become a matter of profound concern in the field of higher education and more generally for the development of the organized world Drawing upon the humanities and social sciences The Routledge Companion to Reinventing Management Education imagines a different and better education offered to students of management entrepreneurship and organization studies It is an intervention into the debates on what is taught and how learning takes place demonstrating both the potential and the limits of what the humanities and social sciences can do for management education Divided into six sections the book traces the history and theory of management education reimagining central educational principles and outlining an emerging practice based approach With an international cast of authors The Routledge Companion to Reinventing Management Education has been written for contemporary and future educators and for students and scholars who seek to make a difference through their practice

Green to Gold Daniel C. Esty,Andrew Winston,2009-01-09 From the Publishers Weekly review Two experts from Yale tackle the business wake up call du jour environmental responsibility from every angle in this thorough earnest guidebook pragmatically passionately financially and historically Though no company the authors know of is on a truly long term sustainable course Esty and Winston label the forward thinking green friendly or at least green acquainted companies WaveMakers and set out to assess honestly their path toward environmental responsibility and its impact on a company s bottom line customers suppliers and reputation Following the evolution of business attitudes toward environmental concerns Esty and Winston offer a series of fascinating plays by corporations such as Wal Mart GE and Chiquita Banana the bad guys who made good and the good guys watchdogs and industry associations mostly working behind the scenes A vast number of topics huddle beneath the umbrella of threats to the earth and many get a thorough analysis here from global warming to electronic waste take back legislation to subsidizing sustainable seafood For the responsible business leader this volume provides plenty of organic food for thought Greening the Globe Ann Hironaka,2014-09-15 Recent decades have seen a rapid expansion of environmental activity in the world including the signing of a growing number of environmental treaties and the formation of international organizations like the United Nations Environment Programme UNEP Greening the Globe employs world society theory aka world polity theory or sociological institutionalism to explore the origins and consequences of international efforts to address environmental problems Existing scholarship seems paradoxical case studies frequently criticize treaties and regulatory structures as weak and ineffective yet statistical studies find improvements in environmental conditions This book addresses this paradox by articulating a bee swarm model of social change International institutions rarely command the power or resources to directly impose social change Nevertheless they have recourse via indirect mechanisms setting agendas empowering various pro environmental agents and propagating new cultural meanings and norms As a result world society generates social change even if formal institutional mechanisms and sanctions are weak

The Politics of Global Climate Change Patrick M. Regan,2015-11-17 In 2009 the US House of Representatives passed legislation requiring reductions in greenhouse gas emissions by 18 percent over the coming decade Later that year President Obama went to Copenhagen to sign a treaty requiring reductions by 50 percent over a two decade period The President came back with nothing no firm commitment to reduce emissions and only a vague target to hold global temperature rises to under 2 C How does a President who has a 75 vote majority in the House and a 19 vote majority in the Senate who has pre approval for a treaty reducing greenhouse gas production by 18 percent not achieve a treaty with at least the minimum goal of 18 percent reductions by 2020 Others have answered the puzzle by looking at institutional designs or negotiation dynamics This book articulates a multilevel process that starts with local politics to explain how they can influence international negotiations and why President Obama s efforts in Copenhagen were doomed to fail Understanding the role of local private interests can help form strategies for overcoming national resistance to climate change legislation and ultimately international agreements that could change the environmentally self destructive course we are on Green Business Nevin Cohen,2011-06-28 Annotation Presenting 150 signed entries this book provides an overview of key principles approaches strategies and tools businesses have used to reduce environmental impacts and contribute to sustainability Why We Hate the Oil Companies John Hofmeister,2011-08-30 As president of Shell Oil John Hofmeister was known for being a straight shooter willing to challenge his peers throughout the industry Now he s a man on a mission the founder of Citizens for Affordable Energy crisscrossing the country in a grassroots campaign to change the way we look at energy in this country While pundits proffer false new promises of green energy independence or flatly deny the existence of a problem Hofmeister offers an insider s view of what s behind the energy companies posturing and how politicians use energy misinformation disinformation and lack of information to get and stay elected He tackles the energy controversy head on without regard for political correctness He also provides a new framework for solving difficult problems identifying solutions that will lead to a future of comfortable lifestyles affordable and clean energy environmental protection and sustained economic competitiveness
