Captured by Māori Trevor Bentley, 2004-01-01 The capture of white women by Maori in the nineteenth century was often accompanied by high hysteria and moral outrage Trevor Bentley tells these women's stories including those of Charlotte Badger Ann Morley Caroline Perrett and Elizabeth Guard exploring contemporary myths that all of these women were mistreated and held against their will The white settler population was at once fascinated and appalled by these stories what did the women have to do to survive how did they live and well what about sex The settlers were obsessed with the virtue of these women and in the retelling of their experiences most enjoyable aspects of living with Maori were suppressed Bentley reveals that two of these women actually chose to remain in the Maori world Natural History, 1985 New York Times Saturday Book Review Supplement, 1995-06 繁體中文 繁體中文(繁體 HardCover) 繁體, 2002 The Fox Boy Peter Walker, 2001 It was Walker's question Well I wonder what happened to you which set him off on this remarkable quest Not only did he follow Ngata Omahuru or little William Fox out of the forest and into the drawing rooms of Wellington and London but he found himself on a personal journey which converged unexpectedly with the material he uncovered Walker learned that this Maori boy about whom perhaps ten lines had ever been published in the history books played a crucial role in New Zealand's history He also learned about Maori ghosts and some very eccentric English scoundrels BOOK JACKET

Cannibal Jack Trevor Bentley, 2010-05-03 In a frontier society full of colourful characters in early nineteenth century New Zealand Jacky Marmon more commonly known as Cannibal Jack was more colourful than most Jumping ship off the New Zealand coast he first lived among Ng puhi at the Bay of Islands where he acquired five wives and served his chief as a trader and white priest Joining Hongi Hika's great Musket Wars campaigns against the Tamaki and Kaipara tribes he claimed to have served as Hika's personal war tohunga He survived to settle in the Hokianga from 1823 and was involved in Hone Heke's Flagstaff War of 1845 In this biography of a wonderfully curious character the author of the bestselling Pakeha Maori traces Marmon's life and times drawing on his own knowledge and research as well as on Marmon's own not always reliable personal accounts Fox Boy Peter Walker, 2001 A fascinating account of a young Maori boy who was kidnapped in 1869 at the age of five by English forces raised to be an English gentleman and who ended up playing a crucial role in New Zealand history Transgressing Tikanga Trevor Bentley, 2021 Transgressing Tikanga is a collection of twenty first hand accounts written by Europeans who were captured by Maori between 1816 and 1884 These Pakeha men and women were seized when they either committed blatant acts of aggression or unknowingly transgressed tikanga Maori customary law for which utu was required These captivity narratives are packed with drama and action and are not always easy reading but they create a vivid picture of nineteenth century interactions between Maori and Pakeha They provide a rich insight into early Maori life including the principals of captivity and utu social order religious practices everyday customs and the conduct of warfare

With notes that give detailed historical context Transgressing Tikanga makes an important contribution to understanding the cross cultural tensions from which contemporary New Zealand society has emerged Back cover Sleeps Standing Witi Ihimaera, Hemi Kelly, 2017-08-28 Both fiction and fact this fascinating book is a kaleidoscopic exploration of the Battle of Orakau During three days in 1864 300 Maori men women and children fought an Imperial army and captured the imagination of the world The battle marked the end of the Land Wars in the Waikato and resulted in vast tracts of land being confiscated for European settlement Instead of following the usual standpoint of the victors this book takes a Maori perspective It is centred around Witi Ihimaera's moving novella Sleeps Standing which views the battle through the eyes of a 16 year old boy named Moetu Alongside the novella are non fiction narratives from Maori eyewitnesses together with images and a Maori translation by Hemi Kelly further giving voice to and illuminating the people who tried to protect their culture and land It is estimated that at the height of the battle 1700 immensely superior troops well armed and amply resourced laid siege to the hastily constructed pa at Orakau The defenders were heavily outnumbered with few supplies or weapons but when told to submit they replied E hoa ka whawhai tonu matou ake ake ake Friend I shall fight against you for ever for ever
