The African Continental Free Trade Area Benjamin Ofori-Amoah,2024-06-13 In March of 2018 44 African countries signed the African Continental Free Trade Area agreement AfCFTA to launch what is considered as the largest free trade area in the world The signing of the agreement has been hailed as a major breakthrough for African development by African countries and organizations as well as external observers of African affairs This is not the first time African countries have proposed a new organizational and institutional structure for development African countries have signed at least 13 regional trade agreements RTAs for intraregional trade since 1959 However the track record of these groups has been relatively mediocre compared to RTAs elsewhere Thus Africa has the lowest percentage of intracontinental trade in the world This volume evaluates the prospects and challenges for the AfCFTA through a deep dive assessment of previous trade blocs on the African continent and of regional free trade areas in other parts of the world The central question of the book is this If pre AfCFTA trade blocs in Africa did not encourage more intracontinental trade what guarantees that the AfCTA will The formation of the AfCFTA will definitely remove overlapping membership that existed with previous trading blocs on the continent but what is different about the AfCFTA that will get rid of cumbersome regulation boost manufacturing and create jobs This book argues that the dreams of AfCFTA will not be realized unless African countries make efforts to address the industry mix of their economies and to enforce the rules and regulations they set down on paper Cambridge

International Trade and Sustainable Development Bob Milward, 2019-11-19 The contemporary orthodox view of world trade has centred generally unchallenged on the ideas of free trade based on the theoretical construct of comparative advantage This book will engage in a critique of the orthodox position based on the underlying theoretical economic construct the historical development of the now developed economies and the morally unsustainable position of the free trade regime The author examines alternatives such as Most Favoured Nation and Preferential Trading Agreements before making the argument in favour of Asymmetric Trading where the underdeveloped economies can develop behind tariff barriers and quotas whilst the triadic nations maintain a lack of barriers to the exports of these economies He outlines how such a trading regime would be mutually beneficial in the long term in the sense that development through industrialisation takes place and the increase in GDP per capita would allow markets for exports to be sustainable thus widening the market for the goods and services of the developed economies However the author demonstrates that free trade actually increases the development gap by maintaining the status quo in terms of the underdeveloped economies specialising in and exporting low value added primary products and importing high value added manufactures The book analyses contemporary and historical data to illustrate how an alternative trading regime can be truly advantageous to both the developed and underdeveloped regions of the world a global trading regime that is capable of increasing GDP in a sustainable manner without transferring a surplus from the poor to the rich nations and without a long term commitment on the part of the developed nations to altruism

The Oxford Handbook of Structural Transformation Célestin Monga, Justin Yifu Lin, 2019-02-07 The Oxford Handbook of Structural Transformation addresses the economics of structural transformation around the world It deals with major themes which include history and context critical issues and concepts methodological foundations main theoretical approaches policy issues some illuminating country experiences of structural transformation and important debates on the respective roles of the market and the state in that process The historical record provides a challenge for economists to understand the success of the rising economic powers some of them initially considered unlikely candidates for prosperity and the stagnation or decline of others Five major questions emerge Why has so much divergence occurred among nations of the world since the Industrial Revolution and particularly during the 20th century Why has the pattern changed recently with the emergence of a few developing economies e g the multi polar world and can it be sustained What are the key drivers strategies and policies to foster structural transformation in various different country contexts and in a constantly evolving global economy How could low and middle income countries avoid development traps and learn from past experiences whilst exploiting the new opportunities offered by the Fourth Industrial Revolution What is the role of various development stakeholders and other important players in facilitating sustained economic convergence among nations This book addresses these questions bringing the rigor usefulness and multi disciplinary scope of the Oxford Handbook series to a critical topic in economics The Oxford Handbook of Structural Transformation is an essential reference work and a stimulus to new research and creativity across all branches of the social sciences

A New Economic Theory of Public Support for the Arts Arnaldo Barone, 2015-12-14 Should the arts receive public support Can the arts survive in a modern capitalist society Can economics shed light on the nature of public support and whether there is a rationale for public intervention This book undertakes to examine these questions as it explores the ways government and public resources are used to support the arts This book applies a Veblenian approach to understanding economic development to investigate public support for the arts in an effort to determine whether this approach can elucidate economic rationales for public support Divided into three parts the first provides basic information on public support for the arts by surveying support in the United States and Australia Part two includes a neoclassical overview of the topic while part three presents Veblen s ideas on economic development This book will be of interests to researchers concerned with cultural and institutional economics as well as political economy
