College Student Eligibility. SNAP Policy Brief. June 2014 Update Lower-Basch Elizabeth, Helly Lee, 2014 Even after accounting for all financial aid many low income college students have thousands of dollars of unmet need even when they attend low cost institutions such as community colleges This is one factor that contributes to low rates of college completion especially by low income and other non traditional students One way to close this gap is to help students understand and access public benefits that can help them temporarily meet basic needs The Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program SNAP formerly known as food stamps is one of the few benefit programs that is available to individuals without regard to family status or disability Some media reports on the 2014 Farm Bill suggest that it eliminates SNAP eligibility for college students This is not accurate section 4007 of the Agricultural Act of 2014 H R 2642 which reauthorizes SNAP modifies one of the exceptions to the restrictions This policy brief details additions to the 2014 Farm Bill that reauthorized SNAP Most if not all students currently eligible for SNAP will remain eligible
