Extracorporeal Membrane Oxygenation Michael S. Firstenberg, 2016-09-14 Extracorporeal membrane oxygenation ECMO, despite a long and troubled history, is very rapidly evolving into a therapy that can be safely and effectively applied across the world in patients experiencing acute cardiac and/or pulmonary failure. As experiences grow, there is a better understanding of nuances of the importance of teamwork, therapy guidelines, and protocols, patient selection, and understanding the functional aspects of pump circuit technology as it interfaces with human biology. The challenges in managing these very sick and complex patients cannot be understated. The goal of this text is to provide a framework for the development and successful growth of a program. Authors from Centers of Excellence Worldwide have shared their experiences in the full spectrum in dealing with this evolving field.

Trust Tarun Khanna, 2018-08-14 A Harvard Business School professor and international entrepreneur explains the crucial ingredient for success in the developing world Entrepreneurial ventures often fail in the developing world because of the lack of something taken for granted in the developed world trust Over centuries the developed world has built up customs and institutions like enforceable contracts an impartial legal system credible regulatory bodies even unofficial but respected sources of information like Yelp or Consumer Reports that have created a high level of what scholar and entrepreneur Tarun Khanna calls ambient trust If a product is FDA approved we feel confident it's safe If someone makes an untrue claim or breaks an agreement we can sue Police don't demand bribes to do their jobs Certainly there are exceptions but when brought to light they provoke a scandal not a shrug This is not the case in the developing world But rather than become casualties of mistrust Khanna shows that smart entrepreneurs adopt the mindset that like it or not it's up to them to weave their own independent web of trust with their employees partners clients and customers and with society as a whole This can require innovative approaches in places where the level of societal mistrust is so high that as in one example Khanna provides an official certification of quality simply arouses suspicion and lowers sales Using vivid examples from Brazil China India Mexico and elsewhere Khanna shows how entrepreneurs can build on existing customs and practices instead of trying to push against them He highlights the role new technologies can play but cautions that these are not panaceas and explains how entrepreneurs can find dependable partners in national and local governments to create impact at scale
