Ecology of Australian Freshwater Fishes Keith Walker, Paul Humphries, 2013-04-10 This edited volume reviews our past and present understanding of the ecology of Australian freshwater fishes It compares patterns and processes in Australia with those on other continents discusses the local relevance of ecological models from the northern hemisphere and considers how best to manage our species and their habitats in the face of current and future threats In view of these challenges the need for redress is urgent The chapters are written by some of our foremost researchers and managers developing themes that underpin our knowledge of the ecology conservation and management of fish and fish habitats For each theme the authors formulate a synthesis of what is known consider the need for new perspectives and identify gaps and opportunities for research monitoring and management The themes have an Australian context but draw upon ideas and principles developed by fish biologists in other parts of the world The science of freshwater fish ecology in Australia has grown rapidly from its roots in natural history and taxonomy This book offers an introduction for students researchers and managers one that the authors hope will carry Australian fish biology and resource management to new levels of understanding

Mechanisms in the Ecology of Vision S. Archer, M.B. Djamgoz, E. Loew, J.C. Partridge, S. Vallerga, 2013-04-17 John Lythgoe was one of the pioneers of the Ecology of Vision a subject that he ably delineated in his classic and inspirational book published some 20 years ago 1 At heart the original book aimed generally to identify inter relationships between vision animal behaviour and the environment John Lythgoe excelled at identifying the interesting questions in the ecology of an animal that fitted the answers presented by an analysis of the visual system Over the last twenty years however since Lythgoe's landmark publication much progress has been made and the field has broadened considerably In particular our understanding of the adaptive mechanisms underlying the ecology of vision has reached considerable depths extending to the molecular dimension partly as a result of development and application of new techniques This complements the advances made in parallel in clinically oriented vision research 2 The current book endeavours to review the progress made in the ecology of vision field by bringing together many of the major researchers presently active in the expanded subject area The contents deal with theoretical and physical considerations of light and photoreception present examples of visual system structure and function and delve into aspects of visual behaviour and communication Throughout the book we have tried to emphasise one of the major themes to emerge within the ecology of vision the high degree of adaptability that visual mechanisms are capable of undergoing in response to diverse and dynamic environments and behaviours Directory of environmental life scientists - north central r, Directory of Environmental Life Scientists Institute of Ecology, 1974
