GIS for Business and Service Planning Paul A. Longley, Graham Clarke, 1996-02-14 GIS for Business and Service Planning Edited by Paul Longley Graham Clarke The field of geographical information systems GIS is developing rapidly finding applications in an ever widening range of commercial contexts This volume examines the practical use of GIS for business and service planning It considers ways in which GIS may be customised to meet specific user requirements and tackle the applied research challenges of the late 1990s GIS for Business and Service Planning introduces the management analysis and modelling of information within GIS and considers some of the basic problems and pitfalls that can occur in practice covers the major topics of geodemographics and how geographical information can be manipulated and merged into business application databases discusses the relative merits of customised versus proprietary solutions to business application databases examines the range of consultancy applications of GIS for business using international case studies assessing how recent applications have benefited from research developments critically assesses GIS in the market place and evaluates different GIS strategies GIS for Business and Service Planning is essential reading for GIS professionals marketers GIS students and management scientists The other contributors Peter Batey University of Liverpool Mark Birkin GMAP Peter Brown University of Liverpool Martin Clarke GMAP Paul Cresswell SPA Marketing Systems David Maguire ESRI US David Martin University of Southampton Ian Masser University of Sheffield Stan Openshaw University of Leeds Nora Sherwood GIS World and Robin Waters GeoInformation International Gis for Business and Service Planning Paul Longley, Graham Clarke, 1995-09-01 Geographic Information Research Massimo Craglia, H Onsrud, 2004-01-14 Geographic Information Research is a broad discipline and is being actively pursued world wide A group of researchers in both North America and Europe have come together as contributors to this volume as a way of combining their expertise The emphasis is on matters of political strategic and organizational importance rather than on technology or systems and covers the theory and social and political practice which goes hand in hand with GIS Geographic Information Systems David Martin, 2003-09-02 This second edition of Geographic Information Systems builds on the strengths of the first and incorporates important recent advances in GIS development and major new socioeconomic datasets including new census data Martin presents an accessible introduction to the history principles and techniques of GIS with a unique focus on socioeconomic applications This non technical volume addresses the needs of students and professionals who must understand and use GIS for the first time Regional Science in Business Graham Clarke, Moss Madden, 2001-04-24 Graham Clarke and Moss Madden 1 1 Background In the mid 1990s there were a number of papers in regional science that questioned the relevance and purpose of the entire sub discipline Bailly and Coffey 1994 for example talked of regional science in crisis They argued that there were two fundamental problems First regional science was too theoretical in the sense that many of its products were models that could neither be calibrated too complex or operationalised too abstract in the real world They suggested that regional science had not sufficiently demonstrated that it can address real world problems and subsequently lacked a focus on relevant policy issues Second they argued that regional science had become too narrow in focus and had moved away too far from real people and their daily concerns or struggles in life This was not the first time we had witnessed these sorts of arguments both from outside the discipline and from within Sayer 1976 was perhaps the first to argue for a shift from a model based focus in regional science to one based on political economy Breheny 1984 criticised the deep ignorance among regional scientists of the nature of practical policy making and implementation see also Rodwin 1987 for similar views in the mid 1980s Such self reflection is a feature of many disciplines as they reach maturity There have been many similar reflections in geography Johnston 1996 Barnes 1996 and economics see the collection in the January edition of the Economic Journal 1991

GIS And Health Anthony Gattrell, M Loytonen, 2003-09-02 The potential users of GIS for health related analysis and applications are legion In this edited collection there are extensive examinations of appropriate methodologies for spatial analysis and spatial statistics in analyzing health data Chapters explore the links with GIS and consider some of the assumptions and problems associated with such analyses A range of chapters explore the associations between for example air pollution and ill health and between pesticide exposure and disease risk The book also covers statistical and cartographic methods for analyzing data for small areas and methods for health assessment needs Policy Issues in Modern Cartography D.R. Fraser Taylor, 1998-10-16 Policy Issues in Modern Cartography contains the views of national mapping agencies legal scholars the library community the private sector and academia on these and many other important issues The book begins with perspectives from national mapping agencies in Britain Canada and the United States followed by a survey of the situation in Asia The next three chapters deal primarily with legal issues such as copyright and intellectual property from both North American and European perspectives Chapter 8 presents an important perspective on the key issues by a representative of the private sector followed by six chapters written primarily by academics including an important contribution by a map librarian The volume concludes with an assessment of the challenges remaining
