research Criminal Resistance? Temitope B. Oriola, 2016-05-13 Crude oil extraction in the Niger Delta region of Nigeria generates 96% of all foreign earnings and 85% of state revenues making it crucial to the survival of the Nigerian state. Several generations of state neglect, corruption and mismanagement have ensured that the Delta region is one of the most socio-economically and politically deprived in the country. By the late 1990s there was a frightening proliferation of armed gangs and insurgent groups. Illegal oil bunkering, pipeline vandalism, disruption of oil production activities, riots and demonstrations intensified and in 2003 insurgents began kidnapping oil workers at a frenetic pace. In late 2005 an uber insurgent movement organization was formed in Nigeria, christened the Movement for the Emancipation of the Niger Delta (MEND). It operates as an amorphous, multifaceted amalgam of insurgent groups with an unprecedented clinical precision in execution of intents. By focussing on kidnappings that are putatively connected to the struggle for emancipating the Niger Delta, Oriola makes the case for analysing MEND as a social movement organization rather than a terrorist or criminal gang by showing how political processes shape kidnappings in the Delta. The use of violent repertoires of contention has not garnered sufficient attention in the social movement literature despite the fact that around the world many similar groups are adopting violent tactics without necessarily eschewing non-violent techniques. Based on multi-actor research including interviews and focus group discussions with community members, military authorities, 42 ex-insurgents directly involved in illegal oil bunkering and kidnapping and official email statements from Jomo Gbomo, the spokesperson of MEND, this book will be of interest to sociologists, political scientists and peace and security studies scholars.

The Changing Faces of Employment Relations David Farnham, 2017-09-16 The old certainties and structures of employment relations no longer exist. Compared with the golden age of labour in the mid-twentieth century, work and employment are more precarious; employers are increasingly hostile to trade union negotiations and the share of wages in national income is falling. Large-scale employers in turn are using sophisticated people management techniques to motivate workers with person-centred, performance-driven and reward-based processes. Drawing on a range of international data, this comparative text demonstrates that whilst employment relations phenomena are nationally embedded, international market forces are compelling employers to compete in product markets by reducing labour costs, terms and conditions of employment and job security for their workforces. In an age of transnational globalisation and free market national economic policies, this textbook provides penetrating cross-national, cross-disciplinary and theoretical analyses of the changing structures of employment relations around the world. Key benefits: Provides critical analyses of changing patterns of employment relations in the early twenty-first century, drawing upon global comparative and theoretical perspectives. Examines the changing faces of the subject in terms of academic disciplines, methodological underpinnings and institutional, cultural and historic settings. Integrates industrial relations literature with recent studies of the HRM paradigm.
