G7 Current Account Imbalances Richard H. Clarida,2007-11-01 The current account deficit of the United States is more than six percent of its gross domestic product an all time high And the rest of the world including other G7 countries such as Japan and Germany must collectively run current account surpluses to finance this deficit How long can such unevenness between imports and exports be sustained and what form might their eventual reconciliation take Putting forth scenarios ranging from a gradual correction to a crash landing for the dollar G7 Current Account Imbalances brings together economists from around the globe to consider the origins status and future of those disparities An esteemed group of collaborators here examines the role of the bursting of the dot com bubble the history of previous episodes of current account adjustments and the possibility of the Euro surpassing the dollar as the leading international reserve currency Though there are areas of broad agreement that the imbalances will ultimately decline and that currency revaluations will be part of the solution many areas of contention remain regarding both the dangers of imbalances and the possible forms of adjustment This volume will be of tremendous value to economists politicians and business leaders alike as they look to the future of the G7 economies

The administration of examinations for 15-19 year olds in England Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Education Committee,2012-07-03 This report from the Education Committee looks at the administration of examinations for 15 19 year olds in England The Committee expresses serious concerns about incentives in the exam system and about competition on syllabus content Incentives in the system should be changed so the downward pressure through the competition of exam boards is mitigated The Committee considers a number of options to change incentives including i A single board This offers a simpler system with no risk of competition but the Committee believes the cost risk and disruption outweigh the benefits ii Franchising of subjects to exam boards This removes syllabus competition but again has downsides 3 Or the current system of multiple boards The Committee sees no benefit in competition on syllabus content but the setting and marking of exams and associated administration if properly regulated could generate incentives and drive quality up offering value for money to schools and colleges The Committee also recommends the development of national syllabuses accredited by Ofqual The syllabuses would be developed by exam boards in conjunction with learned bodies and employer organisations and could therefore retain the benefits of competition on quality and the incentive for exam boards to innovate
