Canar A Year In The Highlands Of Ecuador:

Cañar Judy Blankenship, 2005-04-01 In this book Blankenship combines her sensitively observed photographs with an inviting text to tell the story of the most recent year she and her husband Michael spent living and working among the people of Canar Jacket Cañar Judy Blankenship, 2010-01-01 Once isolated from the modern world in the heights of the Andean mountains the indigenous communities of Ecuador now send migrants to New York City as readily as they celebrate festivals whose roots reach back to the pre Columbian past Fascinated by this blending of old and new and eager to make a record of traditional customs and rituals before they disappear entirely photographer journalist Judy Blankenship spent several years in Ca ar Ecuador photographing the local people in their daily lives and conducting photography workshops to enable them to preserve their own visions of their culture In this engaging book Blankenship combines her sensitively observed photographs with an inviting text to tell the story of the most recent year she and her husband Michael spent living and working among the people of Ca ar Very much a personal account of a community undergoing change Ca ar documents such activities as plantings and harvests religious processions a traditional wedding healing ceremonies a death and funeral and a home birth with a native midwife Along the way Blankenship describes how she and Michael went from being outsiders only warily accepted in the community to becoming neighbors and even godparents to some of the local children She also explains how outside forces from Ecuador s failing economy to globalization are disrupting the traditional lifeways of the Ca ari as economic migration virtually empties highland communities of young people Blankenship s words and photographs create a moving intimate portrait of a people trying to balance the demands of the twenty first century with the traditions that have formed their identity for centuries Our House in the Clouds Judy Blankenship, 2013-04-04 While many baby boomers are downsizing to a simpler retirement lifestyle photographer and writer Judy Blankenship and her husband Michael Jenkins took a more challenging leap in deciding to build a house on the side of a mountain in southern Ecuador They now live half the year in Ca ar an indigenous community they came to know in the early nineties when Blankenship taught photography there They are the only extranjeros outsiders in this homely chilly town at 10 100 feet where every afternoon a spectacular mass of clouds rolls up from the river valley below and envelopes the town In this absorbing memoir Blankenship tells the interwoven stories of building their house in the clouds and strengthening their ties to the community Although she and Michael had spent considerable time in Ca ar before deciding to move there they still had much to learn about local customs as they navigated the process of building a house with traditional materials using a local architect and craftspeople Likewise fulfilling their obligations as neighbors in a community based on reciprocity presented its own challenges and rewards Blankenship writes vividly of the rituals of births baptisms marriages festival days and deaths that counterpoint her and Michael s solitary pursuits of reading writing listening to opera playing chess and cooking Their story will appeal to anyone contemplating a second life as well as those seeking a deeper understanding of daily life in the developing world Latin Transnational Aging Vincent Horn, Cornelia Schweppe, 2015-09-16 This book focuses on the diverse interrelationships between aging and transnationality It argues that the lives of older people are increasingly entangled in transnational contexts on the social as well as the cultural economic and political levels Within these contexts older people both actively contribute to and are affected by border crossing processes In addition while some may voluntarily opt for adding a transnational dimension to their lives others may have less choice in the matter Transnational aging therefore provides a critical lens on how older people shape organize and cope with life in contexts that are no longer bound to the frame of a single nation state Accordingly the book emphasizes the agency of older people as well as the personal and structural constraints of their situations The chapters in this book reveal these aspects by approaching transnational aging from different methodological angles such as ethnographic research comparative studies quantitative data and policy and discourse analysis Geographically the chapters cover a wide range of countries in Africa Asia Europe North and South America such as Namibia Thailand Russia Germany the United States and Ecuador
