Economic Behavior And Legal Institutions: An Introductory Survey Lars Werin, 2003-04-25 Markets would not function unless supported by a legal framework That framework is no self contained exogenous structure it has evolved in response to the demands of economic activity There are laws made to modify or supplement market behavior in an attempt to produce the desired outcomes Such laws are often called forth by political ambitions to change the distribution of wealth channeled through the political process Thus economic life and law are strongly interrelated There is neither a pure economic system unaffected by law nor a legal system possible to understand without regard for its interplay with economic behavior Still such a compartmentalization has dominated the perspectives of both economics and legal studies This invaluable book presents a unified picture of the full economic legal system based on results within the novel fields of new institutional economics and law and economics It is carefully argued and written in a non technical style albeit with no attempts to avoid deep theory It is primarily aimed at students of economics just beyond their introductory course and students of law in the middle or towards the end of their studies It can also be of great use to both economists on a more advanced level and lawyers looking for a thought provoking survey of an exciting new sphere of ideas Routledge

answer questions such as in what sense can we say that the adjudicative process works efficiently What are the relevant criteria for the measurement and assessment of court efficiency Should the courts try to operate efficiently and to what extent is this viable What is the proper relationship between efficiency and justice considerations in a judicial proceeding To answer these questions a conceptual framework is developed on the basis of empirical studies and surveys carried out mainly in the United States Western Europe and Latin America Two basic ideas emerge from it First economic rationality has penetrated the legal and judicial systems at all levels and dimensions from the level of society as a whole to the day to day operation of the courts from the institutional dimension of adjudication to the organizational context of judicial decisions Far from being an alien value in the judicial process efficiency has become an inseparable part of the structure of expectations we place on the legal system Second economic rationality is not the prevalent value in legal decision making as it is subject to all kinds of constraints local conditions and concrete negotiations with other values and interests
