

The background of the cover is a painting of a Japanese pier at dusk. The pier is made of dark wood with railings and extends from the foreground into the water. Several figures are on the pier: a person on a horse, a person carrying a lantern, and others near a small building with glowing windows. The water is calm, reflecting the sky and the pier. In the distance, there are mountains and a small boat.

A Modern Theory of Language Evolution Carl J. Becker, 2004-12 The discipline of linguistics is a perfect example of the limitations of the modern academy The combination of social taboos that make certain subject matter unfit for general knowledge and discovery and the ever narrowing specialization of scientists leaves us with an intellectual institution that can no longer do anything but apply repair and justify the dogma of Victorian Cosmology that is the rule all must follow Linguistics should be one of the most interesting subjects considering it is the study of our most valuable and revealing cultural asset language However recent publications from the linguistic department for public consumption have been some of the most trivial and boring intellectual expositions that have ever been put between two covers Using the entire database of science we look at the acquisition of language and how it forms our cultural perspective on life including theories of language evolution We develop the theory of the evolution of language from song one of the few suppositions that Charles Darwin actually got right From this basis we move on to the roots of Proto Indo European which we call Bhear Tongue Bhear Tongue is essentially the Eurasian language family dimly perceived by one of the greatest linguists

Lehnert,Carol Tulloch,Stephen Wilson,2018-05-11 This book offers an interdisciplinary analysis of the social practice of taste in the wake of Pierre Bourdieu's sociology of taste. For the first time this book unites sociologists and other social scientists with artists and curators, art theorists and art educators and art design and cultural historians who engage with the practice of taste as it relates to encounters with art, cultural institutions and the practices of everyday life in national and transnational contexts. The volume is divided into four sections. The first section on Taste and art shows how art practice was drawn into the sphere of good taste, contrasting this with a post-conceptualist critique that offers a challenge to the social functions of good taste through an encounter with art. The next section on Taste making and the museum examines the challenges and changing social, political and organisational dynamics propelling museums beyond the terms of a supposedly universal institution and language of taste. The third section of the book, Taste after Bourdieu in Japan, offers a case study of the challenges to the cross-cultural transmission and local reproduction of good taste exemplified by the complex cultural context of Japan. The final section on Taste, the home and everyday life juxtaposes the analysis of the reproduction of inequality and alienation through taste with arguments on how the legacy of ideas of good taste have extended the possibilities of experience and sharpened our consciousness of identity. As the first book to bring together arts practitioners and theorists with sociologists and other social scientists to examine the legacy and continuing validity of Pierre Bourdieu's sociology of taste, this publication engages with the opportunities and problems involved in understanding the social value and the cultural dispositions of taste after Bourdieu. It does so at a moment when the practice of taste is being radically changed by the global expansion of cultural choices and the emergence of deploying impersonal algorithms as solutions to cultural and creative decision making.

The Journal of American-East Asian Relations, 2001 The Journal of the American Chamber of Commerce in Japan, 2001 Circular Breathing Ann McCutchan, 2011

In this collection of personal essays, clarinetist Ann McCutchan uses the metaphor of circular breathing to animate her understanding of her own life as a woman musician and writer. Circular breathing is a technique for wind instrument playing in which fresh air is drawn in through the nose at the same time that stored air in the lungs is released by mouth through the instrument. The process allows the player to produce a continuous line of music without breaking the curve of a melody to inhale. The questions McCutchan grapples with have universal implications. For example, how does one come to be called to a life's work? For McCutchan, who grew up in central Florida in the 1960s, the call grew out of twin desires to exercise a physical voice and to develop an interior one. Bringing both to fruition meant abandoning roles expected of young women in that time and place and learning to live ever after with the conflicting claims of art and life. Questions of familial loss lie at the heart of this collection as well. With a sure, delicate hand, McCutchan examines the impact of her parents' untimely deaths, her inability to bear children and the foundering of her two marriages. Art may not deliver one from sorrow, she discovers, but it may console deeply. Finally, there are the questions that arise when one can no longer fulfill the physical demands of an art. Can a musician trade in her instrument and a world that defined her for decades for something else? Here, McCutchan charts her journey from the stage to the page exploring the ways both worlds feed each other Ann McCutchan is the author of Marcel Moyse Voice of the Flute and The Muse That Sings Composers Speak About the Creative Process Her work has appeared in numerous literary journals and in The Best American Spiritual Writing She teaches creative writing at the University of North Texas
