and the EU regarding regulative and monitoring techniques such as standardizations and comparisons which are carried out through the Open Method of Coordination It suggests that the Bologna Process works as a subtle means to circumvent the EU's subsidiarity principle making it possible to accomplish a European governance of higher education despite the fact that education falls outside EU's legislative reach The book's research interest in translation processes agency and power relations among policy actors positions it in studies on policy transfer policy borrowing and globalization However different from conventional approaches this study draws on additional interpretive frameworks such as new materialism publication of education research nationally and increasingly on an international scale Issues of quality including associated politics also come into play as do questions of the relationship of education research to education policy and practice These latter questions have become more significant in state policies framed by a new public management that call for evidence based policy The opening essay by Bob Lingard and Trevor Gale two former AARE Presidents traverses these matters generally and in respect of this archive of Presidential Addresses helping to define educational research in an increasingly globalised world

Educating for Durable Solutions Christine Monaghan, 2021-04-08 What is education for an unknowable future In Educating for Durable Solutions Christine Monaghan explores how refugees and policymakers have answered this question over time by reconstructing the contemporary history of education in Kenya's Dadaab and Kakuma refugee camps Through oral histories and archival research Monaghan shows how since the founding of both camps in 1991 refugees and policymakers have conceptualized developed implemented and changed refugee education programs She also shows why and how despite these changes real challenges persist in refugee education in Dadaab Kakuma and other camps throughout the world these include high numbers of out of school children and youth high student to teacher ratios unpredictable funding and persistent questions regarding what refugee education is for The author shifts focus from debates over the impacts of specific policies and programs and explores instead how and why different policies and programs were implemented whether they led to meaningful changes in the long standing challenges of refugee education She finds that when and where real changes occurred individuals or small groups of refugees and policymakers acted with tremendous agency and as tireless advocates
