

OPERATING PRINCIPLES

A typical wiring diagram showing internal circuits of the regulator is illustrated in Figure 2. The wiring connected to the indicator lamp relay circuit does not apply when a two-unit regulator is used.

Following is a brief description of the operating principles of the circuit shown in Figure 2.

When the ignition switch contacts are closed, and before the engine is started, current flows from the battery through the indicator lamp and the indicator lamp relay contact points to ground. It then returns to the battery through the ground to complete the circuit. A lighted indicator lamp indicates that the "Delcotron" is not operating.

Also, with the ignition switch contacts closed, the field relay winding is connected to the battery. Current from the battery creates magnetism in the winding of the relay and attracts its armature toward the core, causing the contacts to close. Current then flows from the battery to the regulator "V" terminal, through the field relay contacts and through the contacts on the voltage regulator unit to the regulator "F" terminal. From here it flows through the "Delcotron" field windings to ground.

When the engine starts and the "Delcotron" begins to operate, magnetism in its field winding induces a.c. voltages in the stator windings. Six diodes, located in the end frame of the "Delcotron," comprise the rectifier which changes the a.c. voltage to a d.c. voltage. Consequently, d.c. voltage appears at the "BAT" terminal on the "Delcotron" and the "Delcotron" therefore supplies d.c. current to charge the battery and operate electrical accessories.

The voltage which appears at the relay terminal of the "Delcotron" is impressed across the indicator lamp relay winding. Magnetism created in the winding causes the relay contacts to separate and the light to go out. This indicates that the "Delcotron" is in operation.

If trouble should develop in the system to cause the voltage at the "Delcotron" relay terminal to decrease to a low value, the indicator lamp relay spring re-closes the contacts, thus causing the light to come on to indicate trouble in the system.

As the speed of the "Delcotron" increases, the voltage at the "BAT" terminal of the "Delcotron" also increases. This higher voltage is impressed through the field relay contacts and across the voltage regulator shunt winding. The increased magnetism created by this winding causes the lower contacts to separate and the field current flows through a resistor resulting in reduced field current. This reduced field current causes the "Delcotron" voltage to decrease, which decreases the magnetic pull of the voltage regulator shunt winding. The spring causes the contacts to reclose, and the cycle then repeats many times per second to limit the "Delcotron" voltage to a pre-set value.

As "Delcotron" speed increases even further, the higher voltage impressed across the voltage regulator shunt winding causes the upper contacts to close. When this happens, the "Delcotron" field winding is shorted and no current passes through the winding. With no current in the field windings, the "Delcotron" voltage decreases, which also decreases the magnetism and the upper contact points open. With these points open, field current flows through the resistor and the field windings. As the voltage increases, the contacts re-close. This cycle then repeats many times per second to limit the "Delcotron" voltage to a preset value at high generator speeds. The voltage regulator unit thus operates to limit the value of "Delcotron" voltage output throughout the "Delcotron" speed range.
