Cascetta, 2009-08-22 Science is made of facts just as a house is made of bricks but a collection of facts is no more science than a pile of bricks is a house. Henri Poincaré. The aim of the disciplines of praxis is not theoretical knowledge. It is to change the forms of action. Aristotle. Transportation systems consist not only of the physical and organizational elements that interact with each other to produce transportation opportunities but also of the demand that takes advantage of such opportunities to travel from one place to another. This travel demand in turn is the result of interactions among the various economic and social activities located in a given area. Mathematical models of transportation systems represent for a real or hypothetical transportation system the demand, the functioning of the physical and organizational elements, the interactions between them, and their effects on the external world. Mathematical models and the methods involved in their application to real large-scale systems are thus fundamental tools for evaluating and/or designing actions affecting the physical elements, e.g., a new railway and/or organizational components, e.g., a new timetable of transportation systems. This book discusses the mathematical models that are used to analyze transportation systems, presenting them as the result of a limited number of general assumptions, theory. It also deals with the methods needed to make these models operational and with their application to transportation system project design and evaluation. This field of knowledge is known as transportation systems engineering.

Pimentel, 2008-08-04 The petroleum age began about 150 years ago Easily available energy has supported major advances in agriculture industry transportation and indeed many diverse activities valued by humans Now world petroleum and natural gas supplies have peaked and their supplies will slowly decline over the next 40 50 years until depleted Although small amounts of petroleum and natural gas will remain underground it will be energetically and economically impossible to extract In the United States coal supplies could be available for as long as 40 50 years depending on how rapidly coal is utilized as a replacement for petroleum and natural gas Having been comfortable with the security provided by fossil energy especially petroleum and natural gas we appear to be slow to recognize the energy crisis in the U S and world Serious energy conservation and research on viable renewable energy technologies are needed Several renewable energy technologies already exist but sound research is needed to improve their effectiveness and economics Most of the renewable energy technologies are influenced by geographic location and face problems of intermittent energy supply and storage Most renewable technologies require extensive land a few researchers have even suggested that one half of all land biomass could be harvested in order to supply the U S with 30% of its liquid fuel Some optimistic investigations of renewable energy have failed to recognize that only 0 1% of the solar energy is captured annually in the U S Bipolar Disorder Kostas N.
