Defining Memory Amy K. Levin, 2007 Defining Memory uses case studies of exhibits from around the country to examine how local museums defined as museums whose collections are local in scope or whose audiences are primarily local have both shaped and been shaped by evolving community values and sense of history Levin and her contributors argue that these small institutions play a key role in defining America's self identity and should be studied as seriously as more national institutions like the Smithsonian and the Metropolitan Museum of Art Memory and Popular Film Paul Grainge, 2003-09-06 Taking Hollywood as its focus this timely book provides a sustained interdisciplinary perspective on memory and film from early cinema to the present Considering the relationship between official and popular memory the politics of memory and the technological and representational shifts that have come to effect memory's contemporary mediation the book contributes to the growing debate on the status and function of the past in cultural life and discourse By gathering key critics from film studies American studies and cultural studies Memory and Popular Film establishes a framework for discussing issues of memory in film and of film as memory Together with essays on the remembered past in early film marketing within popular reminiscence and at film festivals the book considers memory films such as Forrest Gump Lone Star Pleasantville Rosewood and Jackie Brown Psychology, Eighth Edition in Modules David G. Myers, 2007 This modular version of Myers's full length text Psychology reflects the author's research supported belief that many students learn better using a text comprised of brief modules as opposed standard length chapters Psychology Eighth Edition in Modules breaks down the 18 chapters of Psychology into 58 short modules retaining that acclaimed text's captivating writing superior pedagogy and wealth of references to recent cutting edge research The modular version has its own extensive media and supplements package with content organized to match its table of contents Psychology AS Mike Cardwell, Cara Flanagan, 2003-09 Based on the content of the Complete Companion this resource provides students with all the essential facts in under 60 pages

Marsolek,2003 Implicit memory refers to a change in task performance due to an earlier experience that is not consciously remembered The topic of implicit memory has been studied from two quite different perspectives for the past 20 years On the one hand researchers interested in memory have set out to characterize the memory system or systems underlying implicit memory and see how they relate to those underlying other forms of memory The alternative framework has considered implicit memory as a by product of perceptual conceptual or motor systems that learn That is on this view the systems that support implicit memory are heavily constrained by pressures other than memory per se Both approaches have yielded results that have been valuable in helping us to understand the nature of implicit memory but studied somewhat in isolation and with little collaboration This volume is unique in explicitly contrasting these approaches bringing together world class scientists from both camps in an attempt to forge a new approach to understanding one of the most exciting and important issues in psychology and neuroscience Written for postgraduate students and researchers in cognitive psychology and cognitive neuroscience this is a book that will have an important influence on the direction that future research in this field takes

Differentiation, Tissue Adaptation and Function of Memory T Cells Weiguo Cui,Carmen

Gerlach,Klaas Van Gisbergen,2020-06-16 Upon antigen encounter na ve T cells differentiate into i effectors that combat infected or malignant cells and at later time points into ii memory cells that provide long lasting immunity This differentiation process allows some T cells to leave the confines of secondary lymphoid organs and to enter peripheral tissues in search of pathogens or tumor cells These different environments pose specific challenges for effector and memory T cells to maintain homeostasis T cells directed into the lungs are likely to encounter higher levels of oxygen but lower amounts of nutrients than those directed into the intestinal epithelium In addition to oxygen tension and nutrient concentrations other key factors such as the commensal flora and stromal components create unique conditions that require tissue specific adaptations of T cells These steady state conditions can dramatically change during infection when inflammatory mediators and T cell growth factors are released requiring the immediate response of T cells The gradual changes imposed by growing tumors can also be challenging for T cells due to competition with rapidly cycling tumor cells that deplete essential resources of oxygen and glucose The strategies that T cells employ to respond to the diverse cues from their surroundings are the focus of current research It appears that next to circulating memory T cells that are confined to the circulation and those that survey all of the peripheral tissues dedicated populations of resident memory T cells exist that can optimally adapt to the local circumstances within each tissue Restrictions on the metabolic requirements of T cells residing in tumor tissue have been found to directly impact on effector functions such as cytokine production The fundamental principles of how the machinery of T cells can translate local cues into tissue specific differentiation processes are fascinating and warrant further investigation

Memory Janine Rider, 2013-11-05 Memory has long been ignored by rhetoricians because the written word has made memorization virtually obsolete Recently however as part of a revival of interest in classical rhetoric scholars have begun to realize that memory offers vast possibilities for today's writers Synthesizing research from rhetoric psychology philosophy and literary and composition studies this volume brings together many historical and contemporary theories of memory Yet its focus is clear memory is a generator of knowledge and a creative force which deserves attention at the beginning of and throughout the writing process This volume emphasizes the importance of recognizing memory's powers in an age in which mass media influence us all and electronic communication changes the way we think and write It also addresses the importance of the individual memory and voice in an age which promotes conformity Written in a strong lively personal manner the book covers a great deal of scholarly material It is never overbearing and the extensive bibliography offers rich vistas for further study

History and Memory in African-American Culture Genevieve Fabre, Robert O'Meally, 1994-12-08 As Nathan Huggins once stated altering American history to account fully for the nation's black voices would change the tone and meaning the frame and the substance of the entire story Rather than a sort of Pilgrim's Progress tale of bold ascent and triumph American history with the black parts told in full would be transmuted into an existential tragedy closer Huggins said to Sartre's No Exit than to the vision of life in Bunyan The relation between memory and history has received increasing attention both from historians and from literary critics In this volume a group of leading scholars has come together to examine the role of historical consciousness and imagination in African American culture The result is a complex picture of the dynamic ways in which African American historical identity constantly invents and transmits itself in literature art oral documents and performances Each of the scholars represented has chosen a different site of memory from a variety of historical and geographical points and from different ideological theoretical and artistic perspectives Yet the book is unified by a common concern with the construction of an emerging African American cultural memory The renowned group of contributors including Hazel Carby Werner Sollors V. V. Clark Catherine Clinton and Nellie McKay among others consists of participants of the five year series of conferences at the DuBois Institute at Harvard University from which this collection originated Conducted under the leadership of Genevieve Fabre Melvin Dixon and the late Nathan Huggins the conferences and as a result this book represent something of a cultural moment themselves and scholars and students of American and African American literature and history will be richer as a result
