It is packed with clear illustrations, exercises and worked examples making it both a comprehensive study aid for students and a reliable reference tool for practitioners. This text is aimed at students studying surveying as either part of a civil engineering building or construction course or as a separate discipline. It is also useful for students who undertake surveying as an elective subject and is a useful resource for practising surveyors. New to this Edition: The latest developments in Global Navigation Satellite Systems (GNSS) particularly the introduction of network RTK and OS Net and their applications. Recent developments in survey instruments, methods and digital technologies including image processing with total stations and laser scanners. Developments in data processing and integration and updates on Ordnance Survey mapping products.

Engineering Surveying W. Schofield, Mark Breach, 2007-02-14 Engineering surveying involves determining the position of natural and man-made features on or beneath the Earth's surface and utilizing these features in the planning, design and construction of works. It is a critical part of any engineering project. Without an accurate understanding of the size, shape and nature of the site, the project risks expensive and time-consuming errors or even catastrophic failure. This fully updated sixth edition of Engineering Surveying covers all the basic principles and practice of the fundamentals such as vertical control, distance, angles and position right through to the most modern technologies. It includes an introduction to geodesy to facilitate greater understanding of satellite systems. A fully updated chapter on GPS, GLONASS and GALILEO for satellite positioning in surveying. All new chapter on the important subject of rigorous estimation of control coordinates. Detailed material on mass data methods of photogrammetry and laser scanning and the role of inertial technology in them. With many worked examples and illustrations of tools and techniques, it suits students and professionals alike involved in surveying, civil structural and mining engineering and related areas such as geography and mapping.
