

PRAYERS

A lengthy service of prayers has been conducted before the battle which has had a particularly uplifting effect on the army. Although the army is somewhat delayed getting to the battlefield, the army start-line will be withdrawn a distance of three to eight towards the army's own rear table edge (1d6+2), the army is highly motivated and ready for battle. If an initiative score of five or more is made, any unit in that formation will count their Combat/Morale Factor as one higher in the first turn that a unit requires to use that factor.

For example, it is turn three and an infantry brigade has suffered several hits from artillery and musket fire. A unit has lost a stand and so must wait for morale. The Combat/Morale factor counts as one higher for this unit and any other unit in that formation that turn. This effect only lasts for one turn for the affected unit.

HARVEST TIME

This army has recently benefited from the bounty of a local harvest, soldiers who have gone hungry for months are now well fed and greatly strengthened—which is more than can be said for the local villagers who have had their valuable produce stolen. A formation that has lost casualties and scores a five or more for initiative will reduce the number of hits on each unit in that formation by one. For example a formation has two units that have been hit, one unit as 2 casualties, the other has one. Each of these units will deduct one hit. This only applies to one formation in the game and the player chooses which formation if more than one are eligible. And this is only applied once.

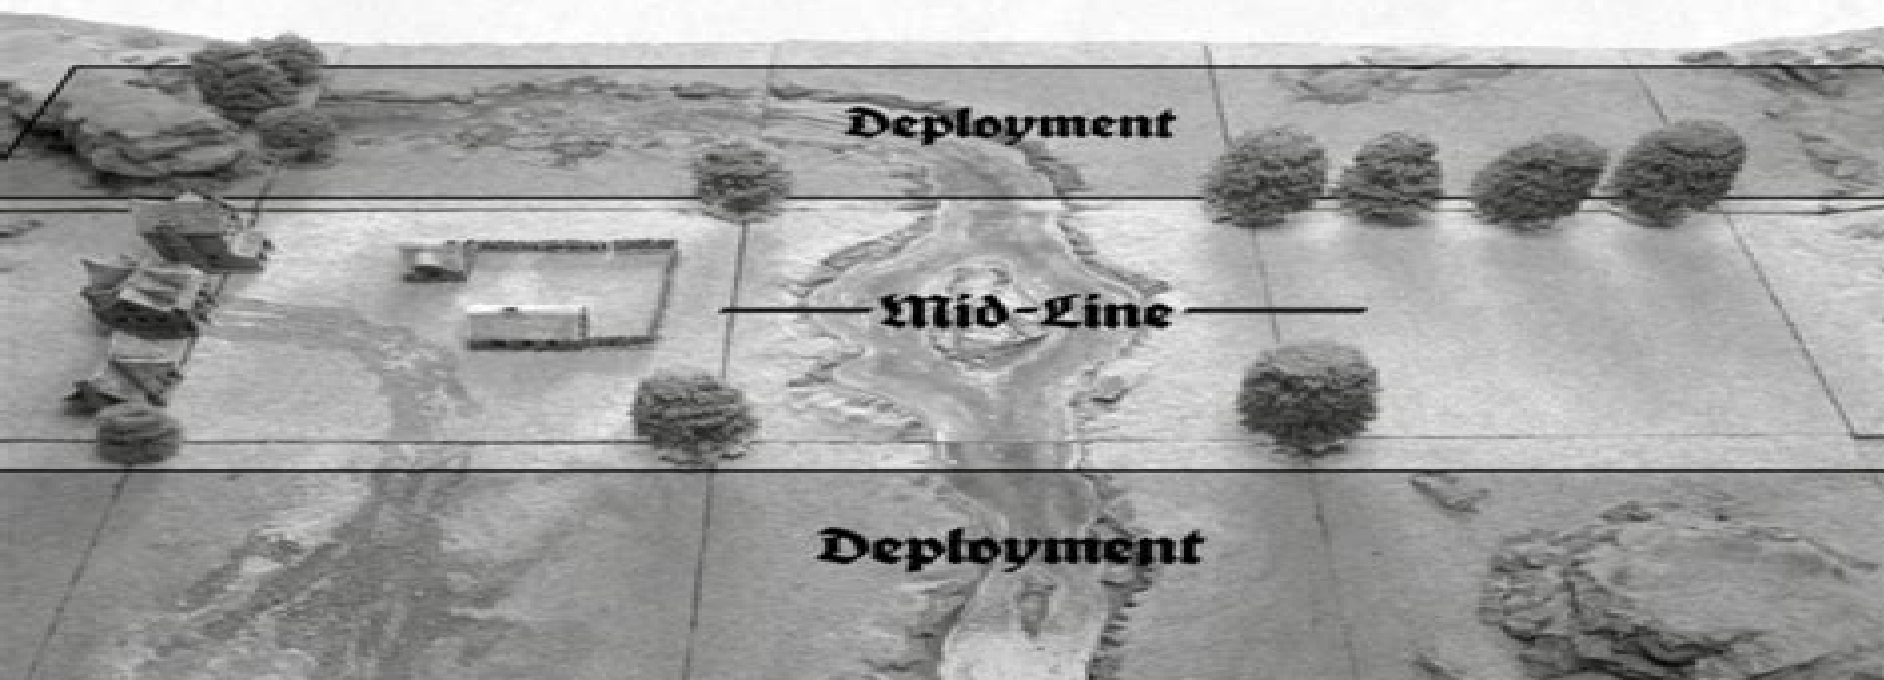

Earthworks

In this period, armies did not tend to construct earthworks during deployment for open field battles. However, such constructions were sometimes a feature of battles near towns or important river crossings where earthworks had previously been erected.

To include such features players' armies will have to occupy terrain (have units deployed within twelve of that feature) that includes the outskirts of a town or a river crossing or other important feature. Each earthwork costs 20 points. Earthworks come in various shapes and sizes but for the purpose of these rules they will provide hard cover for one artillery piece or up to 4 stands of foot.

Deployment/Game Set-Up
