As a result of globalization, higher education institutions throughout the world are adopting English for parts of their education. Higher education is becoming increasingly international and thus linguistically diverse for educational, idealistic and financial reasons. This book presents a much needed description of English as a lingua franca (ELF) from an international university setting and focuses on form and pragmatic issues using authentic spoken data. It provides useful insights into how communicative effectiveness can be achieved in spoken lingua franca communication. English as a Contact Language Daniel Schreier, Marianne Hundt, 2013-01-17. Misunderstandings in English as a Lingua Franca David Deterding, 2013-10-14. This book explores the nature and causes of misunderstandings in ELF interactions. It is based on a corpus of conversations between English speakers from south and east Asia that helps us investigate what causes misunderstandings, particularly the pronunciation, grammar, word choice and discourse. The book also considers how such misunderstandings may be signalled and repaired. Finally, it discusses the implications for teaching English around the world and offers guidance to teachers in enabling their students to become highly intelligible. Markets of English Joseph Sung-Yul Park, Lionel Wee, 2013-05-02. The global spread of English both reproduces and reinforces oppressive structures of inequality. But such structures can no longer be seen as imposed from an imperial center as English is now actively adopted and appropriated in local contexts around the world. This book argues that such conditions call for a new critique of global English, one that is sensitive to both the political and economic conditions of globalization and speakers' local practices. Linking Bourdieu's theory of the linguistic market and his practice-based perspective with recent advances in sociolinguistics and linguistic anthropology, this book offers a fresh new critique of global English. The authors highlight the material, discursive and semiotic processes through which the value of English in the linguistic market is constructed and suggest possible policy interventions that may be adopted to address the problems of global English. Through its serious engagement with current sociolinguistic theory and insightful analysis of the
