Engines Of Innovation The Entrepreneurial University In The Twenty First Century:

Engines of Innovation Holden Thorp, Buck Goldstein, 2014-05-14 Engines of Innovation The Entrepreneurial University in the Twenty First Century Engines of Innovation Holden Thorp, Buck Goldstein, 2013-08-12 In Engines of Innovation Holden Thorp and Buck Goldstein make the case for the pivotal role of research universities as agents of societal change. They argue that universities must use their vast intellectual and financial resources to confront global University Leadership and Public Policy in the Twenty-First Century Peter MacKinnon, 2015-01-15 Canadian universities face a complicated and uncertain future when it comes to funding, governance, and fostering innovation. Their leaders face an equally complicated future attempting to balance the needs and desires of students, faculty, governments, and the economy. Drawing on more than a decade of service as president of one of Canada's major research universities, Peter MacKinnon offers an insider's perspective on the challenges involved in bringing those constituencies together in the pursuit of excellence. Clear, contentious, and uncompromising, University Leadership and Public Policy in the Twenty First Century offers a unique and timely analysis of the key policy issues affecting Canada's university sector. Covering topics such as strategic planning, tuition policy, labour relations, and governance, MacKinnon draws on his experience leading the University of Saskatchewan to argue that Canadian universities must embrace competitiveness and change if they are to succeed in the global race for talent. The Creativity Crisis Roberta B. Ness, 2015 The Creativity Crisis excavates the root causes of America's innovation slowdown, showing why revolutionary insights are no longer chased by young talent. Economically and socially, caution has overtaken creation. This book is ultimately a roadmap for reinvigorating innovation within the system of science. The Soul of a University Chris Brink, 2018-07-01 What is the role of a university in society? In this innovative book, Chris Brink offers the timely reminder that it should have social purpose as well as achieve academic excellence. The current obsession with rankings and league tables has perpetuated inequality and is preventing social mobility. This book shows how universities can and should respond to societal challenges and promote positive social change. Campus Confidential Ken S. Coates, Bill Morrison, 2013-03-11 In 2011 the first edition of Campus Confidential sparked a lively debate about what is really going on inside our colleges and universities. The media and readers alike welcomed this readable, honest book. University authorities didn't. They took the authors to task for spilling the beans. In this second edition, Ken S. Coates and Bill Morrison pick up where they left off, adding new and up-to-date information for students and their parents to consider. Among the questions they address: Why more students should consider the skilled trades. Whether a BA is ever worth the paper it's printed on. How roving administrators are undermining universities. Why we overproduce graduate students. What's right and wrong with what's happening on campuses in Quebec. Now that nearly everyone goes to college or university but only a small percentage of graduates actually find employment in their chosen field, understanding what's really going on in Canadian postsecondary institutions is more important than ever. Readers can count on Ken S. Coates and Bill Morrison for unexpected insights and lots of fresh new ideas and information

Developing Pedagogies of Compassion in Higher Education Kathryn Waddington, Bryan Bonaparte, 2024-09-07 This collection addresses intersections and gaps between practice theory and research that both connect and divide compassion and pedagogies In foregrounding practice it makes an important contribution to the growing call for universities and educators to adopt inclusive student centred approaches that challenge us to fundamentally re think what universities do It celebrates the role of students as co creators of knowledge locating them at the heart of what pedagogies of compassion in higher education should feel like and look like It examines how compassion can become both critical and strategic in order to disrupt systems and orthodoxies that are no longer fit for purpose in a post pandemic world The ultimate goal the book aims to address is the need for humane universities driven by compassion rather than profit which can help to build fairer and more socially just societies The book extends the theoretical and practical discussions of compassion as a fundamental organizing principle in higher education It brings fresh interdisciplinary thinking theories and approaches including the neuroscience of compassion classical Eastern philosophies intersectional compassion sustainability and environmental stewardship It also includes critical reflection on experiences challenges barriers and enablers across multiple levels and perspectives These range from reflections on compassion in the classroom to compassion in the boardroom as well as in the many other spaces and places where learning occurs. It offers a creative collection of essays on compassionate practices in higher education and appeals to anyone who is concerned about the moral standing of the university. For some time now we have been told that universities must be viewed on the business model but this has only discouraged faculty, students and staff. As the contributors show, however, the very idea that teaching and educational practices could be more closely linked to compassion is definitely appealing and it gives us a more inspiring way of thinking about the university of the future. Richard J White, Creighton University, Omaha, NE, USA.

Building Better Universities Jos Boys, 2014-11-13. Building Better Universities provides a wide ranging summary and critical review of the increasing number of groundbreaking initiatives undertaken by universities and colleges around the world. It suggests that we have reached a key moment for the higher education sector in which the services, location, scale, ownership and distinctiveness of education are being altered dramatically, whether universities and colleges want it or not. These shifts are affecting traditional assumptions about both the future shape of higher education institutions and the roles of and relationships between learners, teachers, researchers, managers, businesses, communities and other stakeholders. Building Better Universities aims to bridge the gap between educational ideas about what the university is or should be for and its day to day practices and organisation. It roams across strategic, operational and institutional issues, space planning and building design and technological change in order to bring together issues that are often dealt with separately. By analysing the many challenges faced by higher education in the contemporary period and exploring the various ways universities and colleges are responding, this powerful book aims to support a step change in debates over the future of higher education and to enable senior managers and faculty to develop more strategic and creative ways of enabling effective twenty first century learning in their own institutions.

Transformative Perspectives and Processes in Higher Education Amber Dailey-Hebert, Kay S. Dennis, 2014-11-07. This book aims to provide insight into the complexities confronting higher education today and to highlight tangible opportunities that exist to address such issues. We are in a constant state of flux and higher education needs to respond in more proactive, intentional and innovative ways to remain a relevant cornerstone to society and culture. The editors begin by asking how our collective reality might change if the complexity and uncertainty surrounding us were embraced and leveraged to serve the learner and society as a whole. They invite the reader to explore collaborative approaches to individualized learning pathways, networked learning and a reimagined ecosystem of academia. The chapters are arranged to inform the reader seeking knowledge on how to: 1. reshape and redefine the 21st century university with its evolving role in these transformative times; 2. design and implement courses that address the changing needs of the university and the non traditional student; and 3. utilize research on innovative strategies with processes that promote organizational learning. The chapters profile the fluid nature of learning as it evolves in higher education and the workplace, often with a blurred line separating the two environments. Exciting ideas related to heutagogy, problem based learning innovative constructivist strategies authentic learning and self regulated learning all converge in this volume
