Cultural Resources Archaeology Thomas William Neumann, Robert M. Sanford, 2001 The majority of archaeology majors will go into jobs in cultural resources management in government and the private sector rather than as archaeological academics This textbook introduces students to the practice of conducting a project from legal and ethical issues to the design and implementation of the project through to the preparation of reports for project sponsors c Book News Inc

A Companion to Archaeology John Bintliff, 2008-04-15 A Companion to Archaeology features essays from 27 of the world's leading authorities on different types of archaeology that aim to define the field and describe what it means to be an archaeologist Shows that contemporary archaeology is an astonishingly broad activity with many contrasting specializations and ways of approaching the material record of past societies Includes essays by experts in reading the past through art linguistics or the built environment and by professionals who present the past through heritage management and museums Introduces the reader to a range of archaeologists those who devote themselves to the philosophy of archaeology those who see archaeology as politics or anthropology and those who contend that the essence of the discipline is a hard science

Current Perspectives in the Archaeology of Ghana Anquandah, James, Kankpeyeng, Benjamin, 2015-04-26 This collection of essays on archaeology and heritage studies is authored by local and expatriate scholars who are either past or current practitioners in archaeological work in Ghana They are from Ghana UK US and Canada The subject matter covered includes the history and evolution of the discipline in Ghana the method and theory or how to do it in archaeology field research reports and syntheses on findings from past and recent investigations The eclectic or multidisciplinary strategy has been the research vogue in Ghanaian archaeology recently and this is reflected in the various chapters The essays engage with current theoretical trends in global archaeology and also focus on the role and status of archaeology as a discipline in Ghanaian society today Archaeology is a relatively novel subject to many in Ghana This Reader will therefore be a huge asset to local students and experts alike Foreign scholars will also find it very useful

Archaeology Richard Michael Stewart, 2002 Archaeology Basic Field Methods introduces archaeological field methods and provides a basis for understanding the links between the nature of archaeological evidence the recognition of that evidence in the field and the techniques involved in the search for and recovery of archaeological evidence in a variety of settings Outstanding Features Provides a basic introduction to sediments soils stratigraphy and geomorphology Discusses ethical concerns and codes of professional conduct Discusses cultural resource management CRM and its impact on the practice of field archaeology Contains exercises and discussion questions at the end of each chapter

Archaeology to Delight and Instruct Heather Burke, Claire E Smith, 2016-09-16 This book presents novel and interesting ways of teaching archaeological concepts and processes to college and university students Seeking alternatives to the formal lecture format the various contributions seek better ways of communicating the complexities of human behavior and of engaging students in active learning about the past This collection of imaginative exercises designed by 20 master instructors on three continents includes role playing games simulations activities and performance all designed to teach archaeological concepts in interesting and engaging ways

Archaeological Field Schools Jane Eva Baxter, 2016-06-16 The field school is often described as a rite of passage among archaeologists. They are considered essential for the appropriate training of students for academic or professional archaeological careers and are perhaps the only universal experience in an increasingly diverse array of archaeological career paths. Jane Baxter's practical guide about how to run a successful field school offers archaeologists ways to maximize the educational and training benefits of these experiences. She presents a wide range of pedagogical theories and techniques that can be used to place field schools in an educational as well as an archaeological context. Baxter then offers a how-to guide for the design of field schools including logistical, legal, and personnel issues as well as strategies for integrating research and teaching in the field. Replete with checklists, forms, and cogent examples, the author gives directors and staff a set of best practices for designing and implementing a school.

Language and Classification Allison Burkette, 2018-01-29 This volume adopts a practice-based approach to examine the different ways in which classification is communicated and negotiated in different environments within archaeology. The book looks specifically at the archaeological classification of ceramics as a lens through which to examine the discursive and social practices inherent in the classification and categorization process, with perspectives from such areas as corpus linguistics, discourse analysis, linguistic anthropology, and archaeology forming the foundation of the book's theoretical framework. The volume then looks at the process of classification in practice in a variety of settings, including a university course on ceramics classification, an archaeological field school, an intensive petrography course, and archaeometry laboratory at a nuclear research reactor, and highlights participant observation and audiovisual data taken from fieldwork practice completed in these environments. This volume offers a valuable contribution to the growing literature on language and material culture, making this a key resource for students and scholars in sociolinguistic, anthropological, linguistic, archaeological, discourse analysis, and anthropology.

Archaeological Approaches to Technology Heather Margaret-Louise Miller, 2017-03-02 This book is designed for upper division undergraduate and graduate level archaeology students taking courses in ancient technologies, archaeological craft production, material culture, the history of technology, archaeometry, and field methods. This text can also serve as a general introduction and a reference for archaeologists, material culture specialists, in socio-cultural disciplines, and engineers/scientists interested in the backgrounds and histories of their disciplines. The study of ancient technologies, that is, the ways in which objects and materials were made and used, can reveal insights into economic, social, political, and ritual realms of the past. This book summarizes the current state of ancient technology studies by emphasizing methodologies, some major technologies, and the questions and issues that drive archaeologists in their consideration of these technologies. It shows the ways that technology studies can be used by archaeologists working anywhere, on any type of society, and it embraces an orientation toward the practical, not the philosophical. It compares the range of pre-industrial technologies from stone tool production, fiber crafts, wood and bone working, fired clay crafts, metal production, and glass manufacture. It includes socially contextualized case studies as well as general descriptions of technological processes It discusses essential terminology technology material culture chaîne opératoire etc primarily from the perspective of how these terms are used by archaeologists

Encyclopedic Dictionary of Archaeology Barbara Ann Kipfer, 2013-06-29 A modern comprehensive compilation of more than 7 000 entries covering themes concepts and discoveries in archaeology written in nontechnical language and tailored to meet the needs of professionals students and general readers The main subject areas include artifacts branches of archaeology chronology culture features flora and fauna geography geology language people related fields sites structures techniques and methods terms and theories and tools

Please God Send Me a Wreck Brad Duncan, Martin Gibbs, 2015-05-25 This book explores the historical and archaeological evidence of the relationships between a coastal community and the shipwrecks that have occurred along the southern Australian shoreline over the last 160 years It moves beyond a focus on shipwrecks as events and shows the short and long term economic social and symbolic significance of wrecks and strandings to the people on the shoreline This volume draws on extensive oral histories documentary and archaeological research to examine the tensions within the community negotiating its way between its roles as shipwreck saviours and salvors

Interpreting the Early Modern World Mary C. Beaudry, James Symonds, 2010-10-20 Interpretive archaeology meaning the interpretation social science as opposed to hard science of archaeology and archaeological artifacts has predominantly been the realm of prehistoric archaeologists Many historical archaeologists are participating in this disciplinary shift from processualism to post processualism and interpretation but to date few have called their work interpretive archaeology This volume is based on a session at the Society for Historical Archaeology meeting in 2005 The organizers now editors brought together historical archaeologists from both the UK and the US working in the same areas industrial landscape monuments etc but because of their country based training their work arises out of differing intellectual traditions The chapters in each section do not stand in isolation rather the authors exchange ideas about what each other has written They construct dialogues about theories and practices that inform interpretive archaeology on either side of the Atlantic ends with commentary by two well known names in interpretive archaeology in the UK and in the States

Newsletter Society for Historical Archaeology, 1995

Living on the Boott Stephen A. Mrozowski, Grace H. Ziesing, Mary Carolyn Beaudry, 1996 Combining documentary evidence oral and architectural history and environmental and material culture studies they trace the deterioration of living conditions for mill workers and their families as owners began substituting native born employees with immigrant laborers
