The School Science Review, 2003 Africa in a Changing Global Environment Mutanga, Shingirirai Savious, Simelane, Thokozani, Popphiwa, Nedson, 2013-10-20 Africa is one continent severely affected by the ravaging effects of global environment change yet it is least responsible for this. The continent's rural and urban poor are particularly vulnerable to reduced agricultural production worsening food security, increased incidence of both flooding and drought, spreading of disease and heightening risk of conflict over scarce land and water resources. As such, this timely book, consisting of chapters authored by scholars from multidisciplinary backgrounds, provides the reader a variety of contexts from which to understand the impacts of global environmental change and how affected African communities are adapting and mitigating the scourge. In addition, it discusses different models for mitigation and adaptation applicable to local contexts.

Selman, 2012-12-06 The Sources and Nature of the Statistics of the United Kingdom produced under the auspices of the Royal Statistical Society and edited by Maurice Kendall filled a notable gap on the library shelves when it made its appearance in the early post-war years. Through a series of critical reviews by many of the foremost national experts, it constituted a valuable contemporary guide to statisticians working in many fields as well as a benchmark to which historians of the development of Statistics in this country are likely to return again and again. The Social Science Research Council and the Society were both delighted when Professor Maunders came forward with the proposal that a revised version should be produced, indicating as well his willingness to take on the onerous task of editor.
