another book about Ore Deposits There are a number of factors which motivated us to write this text and which may provide an answer to this question Firstly our colleagues are predominantly mining engineers and minerals processing technologists which provides us with a different perspective of ore deposits from many academic geologists Secondly we have found that most existing texts are either highly theoretical or merely descriptive we have attempted to examine the practical implications of the geological setting and genetic models of particular ore deposit types We have written the text primarily for undergraduates who are taking options in Economic Geology towards the end of a Degree Course in Geology However we hope that the text will also prove valuable to geologists working in the mining industry The text is to a large extent based on a review of the existing literature up to the end of 1984 However we have visited most of the mining districts cited in the text and have also corresponded extensively with geologists to extend our knowledge beyond the published literature Nonetheless writing a text book on Ore Deposits is a demanding task and it is inevitable that sins of both omission and commission have been committed We would therefore welcome comments from readers which can be incorporated in future editions

With original primary source documents, this anthology brings readers into the vast unknown 19th-century American West through the eyes of the explorers who saw it for the first time. This volume brings together book excerpts, maps, and illustrations from 12 explorers from the 19th century, highlighting their lives and contributions. Arranged chronologically, the 10 chapters focus on individual explorers with biographies and background information about and document excerpts from each person. The chapters offer analyses of each document's relevance to the historical period, geographic knowledge, and cultural perspective. This guide shares the important contributions from explorers like Lewis and Clark, Zebulon Pike, Jedediah Smith, James P. Beckwourth, John C. Fremont, Susan Magoffin, and John Wesley Powell. It also nurtures readers' historical literacy by modeling historians' methods of analyzing primary sources. Readers will see new and familiar events from different perspectives, including that of a woman traveling along the Santa Fe Trail, one of the most famous African American mountain men, and a Civil War veteran, among many others. Biographical
