Exploring Medical Anthropology Sarah Julian, 2023-09-19 Medical anthropology is a subfield of anthropology that studies human health and disease health care systems and bio cultural adaptation It examines how health and illness are shaped experienced and understood in the context of global historical and political forces It addresses afflictions which are of increasing importance but are seldom sufficiently understood by biomedicine alone The fundamental areas of research within this field are cultures of medicine the social nature of emergent biotechnology the economics of bodily injury and psychic expressions of disorder It also investigates areas such as the impact of the formation of social networks on health the lived consequences of disability and inequality and the dynamic concepts of human biological difference and race This field focuses on how health problems arise from larger social issues which must also be addressed Medical anthropology strives to dissolve the stark divide between life sciences and social sciences This book contains some path breaking studies in the field of medical anthropology Researchers medical professionals and students associated with this field will be greatly assisted by it

Biotechnology and Culture Paul E. Brodwin, 2001-01-22 Essays on technology's effect on our relationship with our bodies A timely and perceptive look at some of the most anxiety producing issues of the day Paul Rabinow University of California Berkeley As birth illness and death increasingly come under technological control struggles arise over who should control the body and define its limits and capacities Biotechnologies turn the traditional facts of life into matters of expert judgment and partisan debate They blur the boundary separating people from machines male from female and nature from culture In these diverse ways they destroy the gold standard of the body formerly taken for granted Biotechnologies become a convenient tangible focus for political contests over the nuclear family legal and professional authority and relations between the sexes Medical interventions also transform intimate personal experience giving birth building new families and surviving serious illness now immerse us in a web of machines expert authority and electronic images We use and imagine the body in radically different ways and from these emerge new collective discourses of morality and personal identity This book brings together historians anthropologists cultural critics and feminists to examine the broad cultural effects of technologies such as surrogacy tissue culture research and medical imaging The moral anxieties raised by biotechnologies and their circulation across class and national boundaries provide other interdisciplinary themes for discourse in these essays The authors favor complex social dramas of the refusal celebration or ambivalent acceptance of new medical procedures Eschewing polemics or pure theory contributors show how biotechnology collides with everyday life and reshapes the political and personal meanings of the body Contributors include Paul Brodwin Lisa Cartwright Thomas Csordas Gillian Goslinga Roy Deborah Grayson Donald Joralemon Hannah Landecker Thomas Laqueur Robert Nelson Susan Squier Janelle Taylor and Alice Wexler This impressive collection offers a number of rich examples of why the development of anthropological studies of science technology and their disruptive social effects is a leading edge of critical enquiry Arthur Kleinman Harvard University

Healing Insanity: a Study of Igbo Medicine in Contemporary Nigeria Patrick E. Iroegbu, 2010-06-08 Healing Insanity A Study of Igbo Medicine in Contemporary Nigeria is an original and in depth study on endogenous medical system in an African society It is craftily written and provides solid insight through case studies and theory into how insanity affects patients and the society Particularly it explores various collective representations and strategies regarding insanity and healing as it examines the healing institutions healers and ritual cults The central question is given the patterns of healing how do the Igbo shape the incidence and symptoms of insanity define its aetiology and provide healers with culture specific resources and skills to address this illness The focus became increasingly centred on bodily semantics and endogenous knowledge systems and practices Dr Patrick Iroegbus work is a very valuable and rare study and has appeared at a desirable time It is for an African society a comprehensive study of the many ways Igbo people in their practical routinelike attitudes and body centred experiences as well as in their more reflective aetiologic knowledge and healing institutions relate to the phenomenon of insanity or ara in the cultural parlance As the first of its kind reminiscent of and assured by the various remarks of Igbo scholars and leaders at various meetings and discourses the task this work has set out to accomplish is a very brave one The authors account of his fieldwork experiences and adopted techniques illustrates his initiation revealing him as a genuine ethnographer who is a friend of people and at ease with his field With both the far seeing and inspiring analysis of Igbo medicine life and culture accounted for in the work the book stands out for ethnographers teachers students leaders policymakers and the general public This is a book that deserves to be read as it shapes the critical path toward understanding ways of healing insanity in a culture specific context crosscutting perspectives for a relationship between indigenous healing and the biomedical sphere Prof Ren Devisch Africa Research Centre University of Leuven This book is written with a clear purpose for everyone to read to understand and heal insanity and indeed provides a thick piece of cultural philosophy and vernacular of Igbo medicine in hopes of putting cultural wisdom in pursuit of integral health care development Prof Pantaleon Iroegbu Professor of Philosophy Major Seminary Ekpoma January 2006 To read this book as I did is to get the benefit of Dr Patrick Iroegbus ethnographic insight for an archetypical African healing system in Igboland It offers a fascinating theory of symbolic release that speaks of African symbolic action and knowledge system Dr Paul Komba Esq University of Cambridge Biomedicine, Healing and Modernity in Rural Bangladesh Md. Faruk Shah, 2019-12-02 This book provides an ethnographic account of the ways in which biomedicine as a part of the modernization of healthcare has been localized and established as the culturally dominant medical system in rural Bangladesh Dr Faruk Shah offers an anthropological critique of biomedicine in rural Bangladesh that explains how the existing social inequalities and disparities in healthcare are intensified by the practices undertaken in biomedical health centres through the healthcare bureaucracy and local gendered politics This work of villagers healthcare practices leads to a fascinating analysis of the local healthcare bureaucracy corruption structural violence commodification of health pharmaceutical promotional strategies and gender discrimination in population control Shah argues that biomedicine has already achieved cultural authority and acceptability at almost all levels of the health sector in Bangladesh However in this system healthcare bureaucracy is shaped by social capital power relations and kin networks and corruption is a central element of daily care practices Contesting Measles and Vaccination in Pakistan Inayat Ali, 2024-08-29 This book explores issues surrounding measles and vaccination in Pakistan Drawing on long term ethnographic research it focuses on two major outbreaks in Sindh Province and on Pakistan s vaccination campaigns The chapters examine the responses to outbreaks and vaccination from various stakeholders including local people the Pakistani government and the WHO Inayat Ali reflects on the competing agendas differing conceptualizations of measles and vaccination and the factors that lie behind these contestations Situating outbreaks within the institutionalized form of disparities he analyzes the rituals used to deal with measles and local resistance to vaccines in Pakistan The distinct imaginaries and practices related to measles and vaccination are considered in national and global context and the book makes a valuable contribution to the development of an anthropology of vaccination and medical anthropology of Pakistan Ottoman Medicine Miri

Shefer-Mossensohn,2010-07-02 The social history of medicine in the Ottoman Empire and the historic Middle East is told in rich detail for the first time in English Accessible and engaging Ottoman Medicine sheds light on the work and power of medical practitioners in the Ottoman world The enduring significance and fascinating history of Ottoman medicine emerge through a consideration of its medical ethics troubled relationship with religion standards of professionalism bureaucratization and health systems management and the extent of state control Of interest to healthcare providers healers and patients this book helps us better understand and appreciate the medical practices of non Western societies
