Space Policy in Developing Countries Robert C. Harding, 2013 This book analyses the rationale and history of space programs in countries of the developing world Space was at one time the sole domain of the wealthiest developed countries However the last couple of decades of the twentieth century and the first decade of the twenty first century have witnessed the number of countries with state supported space programs blossom Today no less than twenty five developing states including the rapidly emerging economic powers of Brazil seventh largest China second largest and India fourth largest possess active national space programs with already proven independent launch capability or concrete plans to achieve it soon This work places these programs within the context of international relations theory and foreign policy analysis The author categorizes each space program into tiers of development based not only on the level of technology utilised but on how each fits within the country's overall national security and or development policies The text also places these programs into an historical context which enables the author to demonstrate the logical thread of continuity in the political rationale for space capabilities generally This book will be of much interest to students of space power and politics development studies strategic studies and international relations in general

Cosmic Fragments Asif A. Siddiqi,2025-05-20 Looking beyond the well trodden celebratory narratives of space exploration and the powerful nostalgia of lunar landings Cosmic Fragments focuses instead on the moral ambiguities of spaceflight Beyond the fetishization of machines men and manifest destiny and the Cold War tensions of the space race lies a history rife with violence racial inequity colonial ambitions and catastrophe This volume yields new insights on the crucial role of environmental damage Indigenous dispossession population displacements infrastructural entanglements and narratives of decline in space exploration situated within larger questions in the history of science technology and the environment Each chapter explores histories of space travel across nations and regions to better understand the destructive power of infrastructure waste and exploitative legal regimes at the height of the space age Drawing from postcolonial science studies science and technology studies and anthropology contributors suggest that phenomena designed to disenfranchise and dislocate such as the displacement of Indigenous peoples were deeply imbedded in the coloniality of space travel By confronting and challenging problematic early accounts rooted in the cultural mores of settler colonialism Cosmic Fragments offers a fundamental repositioning of the history of spaceflight
