Captive Audience Susan Crawford, 2013-01-08 Ten years ago the United States stood at the forefront of the Internet revolution. With some of the fastest speeds and lowest prices in the world for high speed Internet access the nation was poised to be the global leader in the new knowledge based economy. Today that global competitive advantage has all but vanished because of a series of government decisions and resulting monopolies that have allowed dozens of countries including Japan and South Korea to pass us in both speed and price of broadband. This steady slide backward not only deprives consumers of vital services needed in a competitive employment and business market it also threatens the economic future of the nation. This important book by leading telecommunications policy expert Susan Crawford explores why Americans are now paying much more but getting much less when it comes to high speed Internet access. Using the 2011 merger between Comcast and NBC Universal as a lens Crawford examines how we have created the biggest monopoly since the breakup of Standard Oil a century ago. In the clearest terms this book explores how telecommunications monopolies have affected the daily lives of consumers and America's global economic standing. Broadband in Europe Dan

Maldoom, Richard Marsden, American Enterprise Institute, Hal J. Singer, 2005-11-22 Broadband is a key enabler of the information society increasing productivity and competitiveness across all sectors of the economy Unlike traditional narrowband connections broadband provides high speed always on connections to the Internet and supports innovative content and services Direct consumer welfare gains from mass market adoption of broadband across the EU could easily reach 50 billion euros or more per annum This is quite apart from the more profound societal shifts that ubiquitous broadband could bring It may allow the individual to distribute content and ideas independent of traditional media and bring together communities of interest without regard to borders Public policy for broadband will have a big impact on whether and how quickly these benefits are realised Getting policy right could bring large benefits for consumers firms and the economy at large getting policy wrong risks slowing both the rollout of broadband and new innovative services and thus the realisation of the EU's Europe vision In this book we focus on the residential market for broadband access in EU countries analysing the current and prospective level of competition and drawing implications for public policy A key aim is to understand better the relative importance of facilities based and access based provision in fostering competition and promoting take up of broadband services
