Online and Offline Modulators of Motor Learning Shahabeddin Vahdat, Ovidiu Lungu, Bradley King, Geneviève Albouy, Julien Doyon, 2017-05-25 Both the acquisition of new and the modification of previously acquired motor skills are necessary to achieve optimal levels of motor performance in everyday functioning as well as to attain expert performance levels that are evident in sports and arts A multitude of factors have been shown to influence the various stages of the learning process from the acquisition i.e. motor memory encoding to the consolidation and subsequent retention of a skill. These factors or modulators can affect learning through online processes taking place during practice of a new motor skill or through offline processes occurring in the absence of task performance i.e. after training sessions. Although much of the recent research from various disciplines has placed an increased emphasis on identifying factors that can influence the motor learning process, we lack an integrated understanding of online and offline determinants of motor skill behaviours. Potential motor learning modulators include but are certainly not limited to stress, anxiety, attention, executive functioning, social interaction, stimulus response mapping, training schedule, regimen, learning environment, vigilance, consciousness states including sleep, wakefulness or meditation, brain stimulation interference as well as resting state brain connectivity. Pathological and non-pathological i.e. development or aging changes in the brain can also be conceptualized as potential modulators. The aim of this Research Topic is to bridge research from the cognitive, sensory, motor and psychological domains using various behavioural paradigms and neuroimaging techniques in order to provide a comprehensive view of the online and offline modulators of motor learning and how they interact to influence motor performance. Critically, the overarching goal is to gain a better understanding of how motor behaviour can be optimized. We believe that merging research from diverse neuroscientific communities would contribute to fulfilling this goal and potentially highlight possible shared neurophysiological mechanisms influencing motor learning.

Masters of Design: Logos & Identity Sean Adams, 2008-09-01. Masters of Design: Logos and Identity profiles twenty well-known designers who are recognized for the particular areas of design in which they are profiled in the Masters series. The profiles are not only inspirational but they provide real-world advice and support designers can use in their projects. Through real-world examples and illustrations, the authors present the work of the 20 legends focusing on the subject of identity and logos. This ranges from simple mark-making to full-scale programs applied to multiple mediums. The book also includes a gallery of marks, sidebars on heroes and inspirations, and diagrams to explain concepts or processes. The designers included will have a wide age range, type of work in-house agencies, small business, large firm, domestic and international designers. Each profile is about 2,000 words and includes 10-15 projects with captions that detail the specifics. We include current projects as well as the projects that put these people on the map.
