Evidence Based Conservation Lessons From The Lower Mekong The Earthscan Forest Library:

Evidence-based Conservation Terry C.H. Sunderland, Jeffrey Sayer, Hoang Thi Minh Ha, 2012-09-10 There is a considerable gap between the science of conservation biology and the design and execution of biodiversity conservation projects in the field Science is often failing to inform the practice of conservation which remains largely experience based The main reason is the poor accessibility of evidence on the effectiveness of different interventions This is the basis for this book adopting an evidence based approach modelled on the systematic reviews used in health sciences and now being applied to many policy arenas Evidence based Conservation brings together a series of case studies written by field practitioners that provides the evidence base for evaluating how effective conservation and poverty alleviation strategies can be better implemented A series of systematic reviews uses experiences and data from fifteen integrated conservation and development projects conducted in the Lower Mekong region specifically in Vietnam Laos and Cambodia They provide wide ranging overviews of the effectiveness of protected areas and how innovative tools and methods for monitoring and evaluation can be utilised for more effective outcomes Results are in the form of management and policy recommendations based on the quality of evidence and the cost utility of the intervention By bridging the gap between field practice and conservation the analysis should lead to more effective integrated conservation and development interventions The book represents one of the first attempts to apply the evidence based approach to conservation and development

Evidence-based Conservation Terry C. H. Sunderland, Jeffrey Sayer, Minh Ha Hoang, 2013 The basis of this book is the disparity between the science of conservation biology and the design and execution of biodiversity conservation projects in the field The book argues for an evidence based approach drawing information from fifteen projects in the Lower Mekong regions with the aim of allowing more effective integrated conservation projects

Evidence-Based Conservation Taylor & Francis Group, 2011-06 There is a considerable gap between the science of conservation biology and the design and execution of biodiversity conservation projects in the field Science is often failing to inform the practice of conservation which remains largely experience based The main reason is the poor accessibility of evidence on the effectiveness of different interventions This is the basis for this book adopting an evidence based approach modelled on the systematic reviews used in health sciences and now being applied to many policy arenas

Redeeming REDD Michael I. Brown, 2013-06-26 It is now well accepted that deforestation is a key source of greenhouse gas emissions and of climate change with forests representing major sinks for carbon As a result public and private initiatives for reducing emissions from deforestation and forest degradation REDD have been widely endorsed by policy makers A key issue is the feasibility of carbon trading or other incentives to encourage land owners and indigenous people particularly in developing tropical countries to conserve forests rather than to cut them down for agricultural or other development purposes This book presents a major critique of the aims and policies of REDD as currently structured particularly in terms of their social feasibility It is shown how the claims to be able to reduce greenhouse gas emissions as well as enhance people's livelihoods and biodiversity conservation are unrealistic. There is a naive assumption that technical or economic fixes are sufficient for success. However, the social and governance aspects of REDD and its enhanced version known as REDD+ are shown to be implausible. Instead, to enhance REDD's prospects, the author provides a roadmap for developing a new social contract that puts people first. Small grants, large gains

Kumudini Ekaratne, Shamen P. Vidanage, 2013-01-01. Mangroves for the Future MFF is a partnership-based regional initiative promoting investments in coastal ecosystems that support sustainable development. This booklet documents selected MFF Small Grants Facility Phase 2 projects implemented in Sri Lanka with emphasis on the sharing of good practices and lessons learnt. The projects are categorized into four thematic areas: namely, Generating Knowledge, Education and Awareness, Ecosystem Restoration, and Livelihood Enhancement. The booklet is based on information gathered from project progress reports, mid-term reviews, notes made during field monitoring visits, and lessons learnt workshops. Smallholders, Forest Management and Rural Development in the Amazon Benno Pokorny, 2013-07-24. The ongoing debate concerning the Amazon's crucial role in global climate and biodiversity is entirely dependent upon sustainable development in the region. Recognizing that forests are an integral part of the social fabric in the region, initiatives such as community forestry, small-scale tree plantations, and agroforestry, as well as payments for environmental services, have aimed at conserving the natural forest landscape. At the same time, these attempt to protect and enhance the well-being of poor local smallholders, including indigenous groups, traditional communities, and small farmers. Against this background, this book analyses numerous promising local tree and forest management initiatives taken by smallholders in the Bolivian, Brazilian, Ecuadorian, and Peruvian Amazon to better understand the key success factors. The insights gained from more than 100 case studies analyzed by researchers from Latin America and Europe in cooperation with local stakeholders reveal the need for critical reflection on the initiatives targeting poor Amazonian families. The book discusses an operational vision of rural development grounded on the effective use of smallholders' capacities to contribute to a sustainable and equitable development of the region. It provides helpful information and ideas not only for scientists but also for development organizations, decision makers, and all who are interested in one of the major challenges facing the Amazon: to combine equitable development with the conservation of its unique ecosystems. Managing Forests as Complex Adaptive Systems Christian Messier, Klaus J.

Puettmann, K. David Coates, 2013-02-11. This book links the emerging concepts of complexity, complex adaptive system (CAS), and resilience to forest ecology and management. It explores how these concepts can be applied in various forest biomes of the world with their different ecological, economic, and social settings and history. Individual chapters stress different elements of these concepts based on the specific setting and expertise of the authors. Regions and authors have been selected to cover a diversity of viewpoints and emphases, from silviculture and natural forests to forest restoration and from boreal to tropical forests. The chapters show that there is no single, generally applicable approach to forest management that applies to all settings The first set of chapters provides a global overview of how complexity CAS and resilience theory can benefit researchers who study forest ecosystems A second set of chapters provides guidance for managers in understanding how these concepts can help them to facilitate forest ecosystem change and renewal adapt or self organize in the face of global change while still delivering the goods and services desired by humans The book takes a broad approach by covering a variety of forest biomes and the full range of management goals from timber production to forest restoration to promote the maintenance of biodiversity quality of water or carbon storage

Forests and Globalization William Nikolakis, John Innes, 2014-09-19 The overarching contribution of this book is a review and assessment of the current and future impacts of globalization on the world's forests The work has been developed by the Resources for the Future Task Force for the International Union of Forest Research Organizations IUFRO Four key themes are addressed the effect of globalization on forests including future trade flows plantations as the primary source of forest products and its consequences including plant breeding and forest health the effect of new products such as bio products and markets on forests and the emergence of forest ecosystem services and their impact on the landscape and human communities These four themes are examined in detail to map out the impacts of these trends for forests throughout the world and at multiple scales and how forest research needs to be adapted to address these trends Overall the volume provides a major synthesis of current thinking and knowledge on the topic for advanced students as well as policy makers and professionals in the forest sector

Large-scale Forest Restoration David Lamb, 2014-09-19 Landscapes are being degraded and simplified across the globe This book explores how forest restoration might be carried out to increase landscape heterogeneity improve ecological functioning and restore ecosystem services in such landscapes It focuses on large landscape scale reforestation because that is the scale at which restoration is needed if many of the problems that have now developed are to be addressed It also shows how large scale forest restoration might improve human livelihoods as well as improve conservation outcomes A number of governments have undertaken national reforestation programs in recent years some have been more successful than others The author reviews these to explore what type of reforestation should be used where this should be carried out and how much should be done For example are the traditional industrial forms of reforestation necessarily the best to use in all situations How can forest restoration be reconciled with the need for food security And are there spatial thresholds that must be exceeded to generate economic and environmental benefits The book also examines the policy and institutional settings needed to encourage large scale reforestation This includes a discussion of the place for incentives to encourage landholders to undertake particular types of reforestation and to reforest particular locations It also considers forms of governance that are likely to lead to an equitable sharing of the costs and benefits of forest restoration

Soil Atlas of Asia Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, EC/JRC, 2023-07-12 The European Commission's Joint Research Centre and FAO's Global Soil Partnership collaborated with experts from across Asia and other regions to produce the first ever Soil

Atlas of Asia The aim of the Atlas is to raise awareness about the significance of soil to life in Asia among a wide range of audiences including the general public decision makers politicians teachers and scientists from other disciplines The Atlas comprises a series of annotated maps that demonstrate the diversity of soil characteristics across Asia in an easy to understand manner It also explains how soils are formed the key factors that shape soil characteristics and why these vary across the continent Moreover the Atlas emphasizes the role of soils in shaping our daily lives and highlights the growing pressures on soils resulting from urban expansion inappropriate land management pollution increased demand for food and climate change The Atlas encourages people to understand how their actions can help protect and restore soils while reducing degradation processes
