Human Rights in a Posthuman World Upendra Baxi, 2009-04-29 This major work a sequel to the acclaimed The Future of Human Rights brings together reflections on human rights theory in the contemporary human condition delineated by the discourses concerning development terror and the emergent posthuman While acknowledging the precarious place of human rights today the author points to the emancipatory potential of the posthuman contending that human rights norms and standards remain constitutive conditions of the emergence of the posthuman This thought provoking volume will interest scholars and students of human rights political philosophy development economics and international law as well as activists and policymakers in the fields of law and development

Globalization and the Postcolonial World Ankie M. M. Hoogvelt, 2017-10-07 This highly successful text has been updated and revised to take account of new developments in international political economy notably the East Asian crisis and the deepening crisis of African society It also addresses recent forms of international management of instability that are beginning to emerge as contemporary forms of imperialist globalism At the same time more attention is paid to the gathering mosquito cloud of local resistance movements around the world

Power in Conservation Carol Carpenter, 2020-05-11 This book examines theories and ethnographies related to the anthropology of power in conservation Conservation thought and practice is power laden conservation thought is powerfully shaped by the history of ideas of nature and its relation to people and conservation interventions govern and affect peoples and ecologies This book argues that being able to think deeply particularly about power improves conservation policy making and practice Political ecology is by far the most well known and well published approach to thinking about power in conservation This book analyzes the relatively neglected but robust anthropology of conservation literature on politics and power outside political ecology especially literature rooted in Foucault It is intended to make four of Foucault's concepts of power accessible concepts that are most used in the anthropology of conservation the power of discourses discipline and governmentality subject formation and neoliberal governmentality The important ethnographic literature that these concepts have stimulated is also examined Together theory and ethnography underpin our emerging understanding of a new Anthropocene shaped world This book will be of great interest to students and scholars of conservation environmental anthropology and political ecology as well as conservation practitioners and policy makers Global Handbook of Inequality Surinder S. Jodhka, Boike

Rehbein, 2024-11-19 This handbook provides the most up to date and comprehensive review of the literature on inequality It provides comprehensive overviews of the main theoretical traditions concepts dimensions methodologies and contemporary debates around inequality as well as outlines of the situation of inequality in the world regions Each entry covers the most relevant literature on the respective topic and gives an introduction to the key discussions This authoritative reference work includes contributions from established and upcoming scholars based all over the world and is truly global in perspective It serves as a first introduction to the study of a particular field or issue related to inequality The distinctive aspect of this handbook is its emphasis on the lived realities of inequality its relational and cultural aspects as well as the economic and quantitative aspects This is a must read reference volume for students researchers and professionals interested in this topic across the spectrum of the social sciences Sport, Development and Peace Joel Rookwood, The End of Development? Trevor Parfitt, 2002-03-20 Over the past fifteen years ideas in the field of development studies have been highly contested During this time most countries from the South have come under the iron heel of the IMF and World Bank who have imposed structural adjustment programmes wherever they have provided loan capital to governments However these programmes have had little success and development studies has suffered accordingly Many development theorists turned to postmodernist theory to try to move on from this impasse which in the 1990s led to a new line of critical thought that heralded the end of development They argued that development studies should be replaced by new strategies of emancipation or new social movements theory originating in groups such as the Zapatistas of Mexico This book summarises the contested ideas of development studies and new social movements theory while rejecting calls for the end of development Using postmodern theory to demonstrate that forms of development can be complementary to emancipatory social movement projects Trevor Parfitt develops an alternative model of development which incorporates the needs of peoples both South and North An Analysis of James Ferguson's The Anti-Politics Machine Julie Jenkins, 2017-07-05 The Anti Politics Machine 1990 examines how international development projects are conceived researched and put into practice It also looks at what these projects actually achieve Ferguson criticizes the idea of externally directed development and argues that the process doesn't take proper account of the daily realities of the communities it is intended to benefit Instead they often prioritize technical solutions for addressing poverty and ignoring its social and political dimensions so the structures that these projects put in place often have unintended consequences Ferguson suggests that until the process becomes more reflective development projects will continue to fail Foreign Aid in a World in Crisis Viktor Jakupec, Max Kelly, John McKay, 2024-02-29 This book investigates the geopoliticisation of foreign aid in recent years against a background of global overarching crises such as climate change conflict Covid 19 economic crisis energy shortages and migration Foreign aid has historically been understood as assisting both with the development objectives of the recipients and with the trade and geopolitical interests of the donors In the first decades of the 21st century however this balance has been shifted by a series of complex global challenges This book argues that donors have now moved towards framing aid as a geopolitical instrument wherein aid can be given or withheld based on power or political intent thus imposing the donor s specific values and norms This book provides an in depth analysis of this weaponisation of foreign aid within a framework of global disruption and ultimately concludes that the world is at a tipping point towards a new socio political world order Asking important questions about the power dynamics at play within the aid sector this book will be an important read for researchers across development studies political science international relations and global affairs

The Emerald Handbook of Crime, Justice and Sustainable Development Jarrett Blaustein, Kate Fitz-Gibbon, Nathan W. Pino, Rob White, 2020-11-18 This volume brings together a diverse collection of essays that critically examine issues relating to crime and justice in the United Nations 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development Chapters examine the issues that practitioners face in working to advance this agenda and the possibilities that exist to advance sustainable development outcomes

Anthropology and Development Katy Gardner, David Lewis, 2015-02-20 Western aid is in decline Non traditional development actors from the developing countries and elsewhere are in the ascendant A new set of global economic and political processes are shaping the twenty first century This book engages with nearly two decades of continuity and change in the development industry In particular it argues that while the world of international development has expanded since the 1990s it has become more rigidly technocratic The authors insist on a focus upon the core anthropological issues surrounding poverty and inequality and thus sharply criticise what are perceived as problems in the field Anthropology and Development is a completely rewritten edition of the best selling and critically acclaimed Anthropology Development and the Post Modern Challenge 1996 It serves as both an innovative reformulation of the field as well as a textbook for many undergraduate and graduate courses at leading international universities
