Doing the Right Thing examines the use of extraordinary legislative procedures in four cases in the U S Congress to accomplish policy objectives that many political scientists would argue are impossible to achieve It not only shows that Congress is capable of imposing parochial costs in favor of general benefits but it argues that Congress is able to do so in a variety of policy areas through the use of very different kinds of procedural mechanisms that are underappreciated The book opens by developing a theory of procedural choice to explain why Congress chooses to delegate in differing degrees in dealing with similar kinds of policy problems The theory is then applied to four narrative case studies military base closures the Yucca Mountain Project NAFTA and the Tax Reform Act of 1986 that both show the variety of factors that impact procedural choice and highlight how our national legislature was able to do the right thing The book concludes by pointing to the variety of ways in which Congress will be confronted with similar policy problems in the coming years and offering some lessons from these cases about what kinds of procedures and policy outcomes we might expect In short Congress is remarkably adept at doing the right thing even under difficult circumstances but only when legislators are willing to manipulate procedures in all the necessary ways
