Zehler,2008-03-03 This book systematically examines how learning to read occurs in diverse languages and in so doing explores how literacy is learned in a second language by learners who have achieved at least basic reading skills in their first language As a consequence of rapid globalization such learners are a large and growing segment of the school population worldwide and an increasing number of schools are challenged by learners from a wide variety of languages and with distinct prior literacy experiences To succeed academically these learners must develop second language literacy skills yet little is known about the ways in which they learn to read in their first languages and even less about how the specific nature and level of their first language literacy affects second language reading development This volume provides detailed descriptions of five typologically diverse languages and their writing systems and offers comparisons of learning to read experiences in these languages Specifically it addresses the requisite competencies in learning to read in each of the languages how language and writing system properties affect the way children learn to read and the extent and ways in which literacy learning experience in one language can play a role in subsequent reading development in another Both common and distinct aspects of literacy learning experiences across languages are identified thus establishing a basis for determining which skills are available for transfer in second language reading development Learning to Read Across Languages is intended for researchers and advanced students in the areas of second language learning psycholinguistics literacy bilingualism and cross linguistic issues in language processing      Still Learning to Read Franki Sibberson,Karen Szymusiak,2016 Foreword by Colby Sharp In the decade since the first edition of Still Learning to Read was published the prevalence of testing and the Common Core State Standards have changed what is expected of both teachers and students The new edition of Still Learning to Read focuses on the needs of students in grades 3-6 in all aspects of reading workshop including reading workshop read aloud classroom design digital tools fiction nonfiction and close reading The book stays true to its original beliefs of slowing down and knowing our readers but it also takes into account the sense of urgency that changing times and standards impose on classrooms This edition examines current trends in literacy includes a new section on intentional instructional planning and provides expanded examples of mini lessons and routines that promote deeper thinking about learning It also includes a brand new chapter on scaffolding for reading nonfiction and showcases the authors latest thinking on close reading and text complexity Online videos provide glimpses into classrooms as students make book choices work in small groups and discuss their reading notebooks Expanded and updated book lists recommendations for digital tools lesson

Joshi, 2013-03-14 The present volume is based on the proceedings of the Advanced Study Institute AS I sponsored by the North Atlantic Treaty Organization NATO held in Alvor Algarve Portugal A number of scholars from different countries participated in the two week institute on Cognitive and linguistic aspects of reading writing and spelling The present papers are further versions with modifications and refinements from those presented at the Advanced Study Institute Several people and organizations have helped us in this endeavor and their assistance is gratefully acknowledged Our special thanks are to the Scientific Affairs division of NATO for providing the major portions of the financial support Dr L V da Cunha of NATO and Dr THo Kester and Mrs Barbara Kester of the International Transfer of Science and Technology of the various aspects of the institute and ITST for their help and support the staff of Hotel Alvor Praia for making our stay a pleasant one by helping us to run the institute smoothly Reading Development and Difficulties in Monolingual and Bilingual Chinese Children Xi

Chen, Qiuying Wang, Yang Cathy Luo, 2013-11-04 This volume explores Chinese reading development focusing on children in Chinese societies and bilingual Chinese speaking children in Western societies The book is structured around four themes psycholinguistic study of reading reading disability bilingual and biliteracy development and Chinese children's literature It discusses issues that are pertinent to improving language and literacy development and complex cognitive linguistic and socio cultural factors that underlie language and literacy development In addition the book identifies instructional practices that can enhance literacy development and academic achievement This volume offers an integrative framework of Chinese reading and deepens our understanding of the intricate processes that underlie Chinese children's literacy development It promotes research in reading Chinese and celebrates the distinguished and longstanding career of Richard C Anderson

The Impact of Learning to Read on Visual Processing Tânia Fernandes, Regine Kolinsky, 2016-01-26 Reading is at the interface between the vision and spoken language domains An emergent bulk of research indicates that learning to read strongly impacts on non linguistic visual object processing both at the behavioral level e g on mirror image processing enantiomorphy and at the brain level e g inducing top down effects as well as neural competition effects Yet many questions regarding the exact nature locus and consequences of these effects remain hitherto unanswered The current Special Topic aims at contributing to the understanding of how such a cultural activity as reading might modulate visual processing by providing a landmark forum in which researchers define the state of the art and future directions on this issue We thus welcome reviews of current work original research and opinion articles that focus on the impact of literacy on the cognitive and or brain visual processes In addition to studies directly focusing on this topic we will consider as highly relevant evidence on reading and visual processes in typical and atypical development including in adult people differing in schooling and literacy as well as in neuropsychological cases e g developmental dyslexia We also encourage researchers on nonhuman primate visual processing to consider the potential contribution of their studies to this Special Topic

Reading Development in Chinese Children Catherine McBride-Chang, Hsuan-Chih Chen, 2003-12-30 This text reviews both similarities and unique cultural linguistic and script differences of Chinese relative to alphabetic reading and even across Chinese regions Chinese reading acquisition relies upon children's strongly developing analytic skills as highlighted here These 16 chapters present state of the art research on diverse aspects of Chinese children's reading development This edited volume presents research on Chinese children's reading development across Chinese societies Authors from China Hong Kong Singapore and Taiwan among others present the latest findings on how Chinese children learn to read Reading acquisition in Chinese involves some parameters typically not encountered in some other orthographies such as English For example Chinese readers in different regions might speak different mutually unintelligible languages be taught to read with or without the aid of a phonetic coding system and learn different scripts This book both implicitly and explicitly considers these and other contextual issues in relation to developmental and cognitive factors involved in Chinese literacy acquisition One of the clearest themes to emerge from this volume is that across regions Chinese children despite lack of explicit teaching of phonetic or semantic character components learn to read largely by integrating visible print sound and print meaning connections Rather than learning to read Chinese characters by rote as is sometimes mistakenly believed these children are analytic learners Chapters in this book also cover such topics as Chinese children s reading comprehension cognitive characteristics of good and poor readers and reading strategies of bilingual and biscriptal readers This book is a useful reference for anyone interested in understanding either developing or skilled reading of Chinese or for those interested in literacy learning across cultures
