

J. GORDON MELTON

A detailed reproduction of the central portion of Michelangelo's famous fresco, 'The Creation of Adam'. It shows the two hands reaching toward each other: the hand of God on the right, extended from a reclining position, and the hand of Adam on the left, reaching out from a similar reclining position. The fingertips are just inches apart, creating a sense of tension and divine spark. The background is the cracked and aged texture of the original plaster.

diverse and creative approaches But what does this splintering of the religious perspective say about Americans Have we become more interested in spiritual concerns or have we become lost among trends Do we value personal spirituality over traditional religion and no longer see ourselves united in a larger community of faith Roof first credited this religious diversity to the baby boomers in his bestselling A Generation of Seekers 1993 He returns to interview many of these people now in mid life to reveal a generation with a unique set of spiritual values a generation that has altered our historic interpretations of religious beliefs practices and symbols and perhaps even our understanding of the sacred itself The quest culture created by the baby boomers has generated a marketplace of new spiritual beliefs and practices and of revisited traditions As Roof shows some Americans are exploring faiths and spiritual disciplines for the first time others are rediscovering their lost traditions others are drawn to small groups and alternative communities and still others create their own mix of values and metaphysical beliefs Spiritual Marketplace charts the emergence of five subcultures dogmatists born again Christians mainstream believers metaphysical believers and seekers and secularists Drawing on surveys and in depth interviews for over a decade Roof reports on the religious and spiritual styles family patterns and moral vision and values for each of these subcultures The result is an innovative engaging approach to understanding how religious life is being reshaped as we move into the next century
