Why Are So Many Students of Color in

Special Education? Beth Harry, Janette Klingner, 2022 Bringing to life the voices of children families and school personnel this bestseller describes in detail the school climates and social processes that place many children of color at risk of being assigned inappropriate disability labels Now in its third edition this powerful ethnographic study examines the placement of Black and Hispanic students in the subjectively determined high incidence disability categories of special education The authors present compelling narratives representing the range of experiences faced by culturally and linguistically diverse students who fall under the liminal shadow of perceived disability This edition updates the literature on disproportionality highlighting the deeply embedded and systemic nature of this decades old pattern in which reforms represent mere shifts across disability categories while disproportionality remains Applying lenses of cultural historical and critical disability theories this edition expands on the authors previous theoretical insights with updated recommendations for improving educational practice teacher training and policy renewal Book Features A unique examination of the school based contributors to disproportionality based on research conducted in a large culturally diverse school district Holistic views of the referral and placement process detailing students trajectories across 4 years from initial instruction to referral evaluation and placement in special education An update on the patterns and literature related to disproportionality Analysis of the cultural historical nature of disproportionality and the socially constructed nature of the high incidence disability categories Recommendations for changing the conceptualization of children s learning difficulties moving away from the presumption of children s intrinsic deficits toward evaluations based on human variation

Building on Resilience Fred A. Bonner II, 2023-07-03 How do we fix the leaky educational pipeline into a conduit of success for Black males That the issue is critical is demonstrated by the statistics that only 10% of Black males in the United States are proficient in 8th grade reading only 52% graduate from high school within four years and only 35 percent graduate from college This book uniquely examines the trajectory of Black males through the educational pipeline from pre school through college In doing so it not only contributes significantly to the scholarship on the experiences of this population but bridges the gap between theory and practice to provide frameworks and models that will improve these young men s educational outcomes throughout their educational journeys A compelling feature of the book is that that it does not treat Black males as homogeneous but recognizes the diversity that exists among Black males in various educational settings. It demonstrates the need to recognize students' intersectionalities and individual characteristics as an essential preliminary to developing practices to improve outcomes at every educational stage. Throughout the contributing authors also focus on the strategies and experiences of Black males who achieve academic excellence, examining growth-producing and asset-based practices that can be sustained and that build upon the recognition that these males have agency and possess qualities such as resilience that are essential to their learning and development. The frameworks and models that conclude each chapter are equally commendable to K-12 educators and administrators, higher education faculty, student affairs practitioners, and administrators and policymakers for whom templates are provided for rectifying the continuing inequities of our educational system.

(M)othering Labeled Children María Cioè-Peña, 2021-05-14. This book takes a distinctive approach to exploring the experiences and identities of minoritized Latinx mothers who are raising a child who is labeled as both an emergent bilingual and disabled. It showcases relationships between families and schools and reveals the myriad of ways in which school-based decisions regarding disability, language, and academic placement impact family dynamics. Treating the mothers as experts, this book uses testimonios to explore not only what mothers know but also how they develop funds of knowledge and how they apply them to their child's education. The stories shed light on how mothers perceive their child's disability, how they engage with their child, and the value they place on bilingualism. The narratives reveal the complex lives mothers lead and the ways in which they strive to meet the academic and socioemotional needs of their children regardless of the financial, physical, and emotional costs to them. This book has significant implications for researchers and professionals working in bilingual education, special education, inclusive education, and disability studies in education. Winner of the AAAL First Book Award 2023.

Raising Generation Rx Linda M. Blum, 2015-03-13. Some 22 percent of American children today have some form of disability. In this highly important book, Linda Blum plunges us into the world of their worried mothers, deciphering labels and pills, fending off stigma, tirelessly advocating for their children. Married or alone, affluent or poor, such mothers often feel blamed and too rarely in the presence of real help. A carefully researched and deeply sensitive portrait of mothers on the Rx frontier.

The Foundations of Urban Education Tiffany A. Flowers, 2023-08-21. This volume explores key issues within the 21st century which can impact schooling issues for students within urban contexts. It investigates issues which help prepare both preservice and in-service teachers by focusing on both the theoretical underpinnings in the field and historical foundations. Some of the topics discussed here include issues related to the achievement gap, school and community partnerships, charter schools, teacher pay and compensation, culturally relevant pedagogy, teacher motivation, and racial classroom and school fatigue.

School Counseling for Black Male Student Success in 21st Century Urban Schools Malik S. Henfield, Ahmad R. Washington, 2015-11-01 Discussions and research related to the salience of Black male student needs and development in relation to their general success and well being is well documented in many fields Indeed many studies have found that healthy masculine identity development is associated with a number of positive outcomes for males in general including Black males In school counseling literature however this discussion has been relatively absent particularly regarding those students living in urban contexts Indeed research devoted to the study of Black males in the school counseling literature focuses almost exclusively on race and issues associated with its social construction with only cursory if any attention given to their masculine identity development as a function of living in urban communities and attending urban schools Based on this lack of information it is probably a safe assumption that intentional systematic culturally relevant efforts to assist Black males in developing healthy achievement and masculine identities based on their unique personal social academic experiences and future career goals are not being applied by school counselors concerned with meeting students needs School counselors are in a unique position nonetheless to lend their considerable expertise insights training and skills to improving life outcomes among Black males a population who are consistently in positions of risk according to a number of quality of life indicators Without knowledge and awareness of Black males masculine identity development in urban areas coupled with the requisite skills to influence the myriad factors that enhance and impede healthy development in such environments they are missing out on tremendous opportunities which other professions appear to understand and quite frankly seem to take more seriously As such this book proposes to accomplish two specific goals 1 Highlight the plight of Black males with specific emphasis on the ecological components of their lives in relation to current school culture and trends 2 Encourage school counselors to give more thought to Black male identity development that takes into consideration differential experiences in society as a whole and schools in particular as a function of the intersection of their race as well as their gender The first rationale for this book then is to highlight the plight of Black males with specific emphasis on the ecological components of their lives in relation to current school culture and trends e g standards based accountability practices in urban environments However I recognize the role of school counselors has never been fully integrated into educational reform programs As such their positions are often unregulated and determined by people in positions of power who do not understand their training job specific standards and thus potential impact on the lives of Black male students As a result their vast potential to develop strong interventions designed to address the myriad racial and masculine factors that serve to enhance and impede Black males academic achievement is often unrealized Therefore the second reason for this special issue is to include the scholarship of professional school counselors and counselor educators with policy change in mind Scholars will be invited to contribute manuscripts that explore race masculinity and academic achievement in relation to the role of school counselors This is designed to encourage school counselors and counselor educators to give more thought to Black male identity development that takes into consideration differential experiences in society as a whole and schools in particular as a function of the intersection of their race as well as their gender

Early Childhood Curriculum for All Learners Ann M. Selmi, Raymond J. Gallagher, Eugenia R. Mora-Flores, 2014-08-12 Early Childhood Curriculum for All Learners Integrating Play and Literacy Activities is designed to teach early childhood professionals about the latest research on play and early literacy and then to show them practical methods for adapting this research to everyday classroom practices that will encourage the development of learning skills The authors link solid play based research to specific developmentally appropriate practices By combining these two areas the text demonstrates that academic learning and play activities are highly compatible and that children can and do develop academic skills through play In addition the text focuses on socio dramatic play a recently acknowledged essential aspect of child initiated play interactions It provides specific strategies that link these interactive behaviors with the early academic skills needed for the initial primary grades Implementation of the information presented in this book will enable children to experience a richer transition into primary education classrooms
