Fathers of Men (1912) Ernest William Hornung, 2008-06-01 This scarce antiquarian book is a facsimile reprint of the original. Due to its age, it may contain imperfections such as marks, notations, marginalia, and flawed pages. Because we believe this work is culturally important, we have made it available as part of our commitment for protecting, preserving, and promoting the world's literature in affordable, high-quality modern editions that are true to the original work. Fathers of Men Ernest William Hornung, 1912 The two new boys in Heriot's house had been suitably entertained at his table and afterwards in his study with bound volumes of Punch. Incidentally they had been encouraged to talk with the result that one boy had talked too much while the other shut a stubborn mouth tighter than before. The babbler displayed an exuberant knowledge of contemporary cricket, a more conscious sense of humour, and other little qualities which told their tale. He opened the door for Miss Heriot after dinner and even thanked her for the evening when it came to an end. His companion on the other hand, after brooding over Leech and Tenniel with a sombre eye, beat a boorish retreat without a word. Heriot saw the pair to the boys' part of the house. He was filling his pipe when he returned to the medley of books, papers, photographic appliances, foxes, masks, alpen stocks, and venerable oak that made his study a little room in which it was difficult to sit down and impossible to lounge. His sister perched upon a coffin stool was busy mounting photographs at a worm-eaten bureau.

Fathers of Men Ernest Hornung, 2017-05-02 Fathers of men E. W. Hornung, 2017-05-11 Fathers of Men is a story of boarding school life by E. W. Hornung, the author best remembered for his series of short stories about Raffles, the amateur cracksman. A coming-of-age story, it was written in 1912, long after Hornung's fondly remembered boyhood days, and follows the trials, tribulations, and cricket matches of the boys of Heriot's house. Ernest William Hornung (7 June 1866 – 22 March 1921) was an English author and poet known for writing the A. J. Raffles series of stories about a gentleman thief in late 19th-century London. Hornung was educated at Uppingham School; as a result of poor health, he left the school in December 1883 to travel to Sydney, where he stayed for two years. He drew on his Australian experiences as a background when he began writing, initially short stories and later novels. In 1898, he wrote In the Chains of Crime, which introduced Raffles and his sidekick Bunny Manders. The characters were based partly on his friends Oscar Wilde and his lover Lord Alfred Douglas, and also on the characters of Sherlock Holmes and Dr. Watson created by his brother-in-law Arthur Conan Doyle. The series of Raffles short stories were collected for sale in book form in 1899, and two further books of Raffles short stories followed, as well as a poorly received novel. Aside from his Raffles stories, Hornung was a prodigious writer of fiction, publishing numerous books from 1890, with A Bride from the Bush, to his 1914 novel The Crime Doctor. The First World War brought an end to Hornung's fictional output. His son Oscar was killed at the Second Battle of Ypres in July 1915. Hornung joined the YMCA initially in England, then in France, where he helped run a canteen and library. He published two collections of poetry during the war, and then afterwards one further volume of verse and an account of his time spent in France, Notes of a Camp.

Follower on the Western Front Hornung's fragile constitution was further weakened by the stress of his war work To aid his recuperation he and his wife visited the south of France in 1921 He fell ill from influenza on the journey and died on 22 March 1921 aged 54 Although much of Hornung's work has fallen into obscurity his Raffles stories continued to be popular and have formed numerous film and television adaptations Hornung's stories dealt with a wider range of themes than crime he examined scientific and medical developments guilt class and the unequal role played by women in society Two threads that run through a sizeable proportion of his books are Australia and cricket the latter was also a lifelong passion Fathers of Men E. W. Hornung, 2017-02-07 A boarding school tale which Hornung considered his finest work Jan Rutter a stable boy is admitted to a public school wrong accent and all Unknown to him Heriot the house master knows the secret which Rutter is desperate to keep half inclined as he is to run away Their first meeting leaves Heriot and his sister in a quiet discussion But you admit the public school is a crucible she argued And what's a crucible but a melting pot A melting pot for characteristics but not for character he cried Take the two boys upstairs in four or five years one will have more to say for himself I hope and the other will leave more unsaid but the self that each expresses will be the same self even though we have turned a first rate groom into a second rate gentleman The Child remember and not the school is father of the Ma

The Road to Armageddon Cecil D. Eby, 1987 The Lost Generation has held the imagination of those who succeeded them partly because the idea that modern war could be romantic generous and noble died with the casualties of that war From this remove it seems almost perverse that Britons Germans and Frenchmen of every social class eagerly rushed to the fields of Flanders and to misery and death In The Road to Armageddon Cecil Eby shows how the widely admired writers of English popular fiction and poetry contributed at least in England to a romantic militarism coupled with xenophobia that helped create the climate that made World War I seem almost inevitable Between the close of the Franco Prussian War of 1871 and the opening guns of 1914 the works of such widely read and admired writers as H G Wells Rudyard Kipling J M Barrie and Rupert Brooke as well as a host of now almost forgotten contemporaries bombarded their avid readers with strident warnings of imminent invasions and prophecies of the collapse of civilization under barbarian onslaught and internal moral collapse Eby seems these narratives as growing from and in turn fueling a collective neurosis in which dread of coming war coexisted with an almost loving infatuation with it The author presents a vivid panorama of a militant milieu in which warfare on a scale hitherto unimaginable was largely coaxed into being by works of literary imagination The role of covert propaganda concealed in seemingly harmless literary texts is memorably illustrated ‘His Captain’s hand on his shoulder smote’: The incidence and influence of cricket in schoolboy stories

Eric Midwinter, 2019-02-01 For a hundred years from about the 1850s to the 1950s schoolboy stories were voraciously read by the vast majority of boys and a high proportion of girls A huge proportion of these ripping yarns were school based stories and cricket was an invariable element From Tom Brown’s Schooldays to the Red Circle tales of the Hotspur comic older children of all classes were inducted into a culture in which cricket was admired as the ideal sport Inevitably this led to generations of parents and importantly teachers inculcating this concept into their offspring and pupils respectively The chief relevant authors were self proclaimed protagonists of the faith of Muscular Christianity there was no accident about the creed they preached in their stories inclusive of the righteous role of cricket in pursuit of their ideals This text describes the sheer weight and longevity of cricket in this type of literature and the background and beliefs of its major progenitors That also analyses the cultural and social impact of this intense volume of schoolboy cricket tales The author’s controversial conclusion is that in brief it was good for cricket but bad for the nation’s education system Here is a book then that will appeal not only to cricket fans but to those interested in children’s literature social history and the development of today’s schools Athleticism in the Victorian and Edwardian Public School J.
