

DO YOU HAVE CURB APPEAL FOR THIEVES?

Under normal circumstances, you want your home to have curb appeal—but not to thieves looking for a steal.

WINDOWS

Keep them locked & use a screw or block so they can't be lifted.

SOCIAL MEDIA

Don't post vacation plans or high-end purchases on social media.

SHRUBBERY

Ensure they are kept neat and trimmed so there is a clear view to the door.

DOORS

Always keep the front door locked and don't post a note if you are away.

ICE & SNOW

Make sure snow and ice are cleared if you go away.

GARAGE DOOR

Keep the garage door and the interior garage door locked.

LIGHTS

Purchase exterior motion-sensor lights and put lights on timers so they turn on and off at different times.

SECURITY

Consider adding a home security system including an alarm system and video surveillance cameras.

What is to Be Done About Crime and Punishment? Roger Matthews, 2016-06-06 This book responds to the claim that criminology is becoming socially and politically irrelevant despite its exponential expansion as an academic sub discipline It does so by addressing the question what is to be done in relation to a number of major issues associated with crime and punishment The original contributions to this volume are provided by leading international experts in a wide range of issues They address imprisonment drugs gangs cybercrime prostitution domestic violence crime control as well as white collar and corporate crime Written in an accessible style this collection aims to contribute to the development of a more public criminology and encourages students and researchers at all levels to engage in a form of criminology that is more socially relevant and more useful

Field Studies in Environmental Criminology Ben Stickle, 2022-03-30 This book includes fieldwork from five continents and demonstrates the breadth of techniques used by environmental criminologists to understand crime Environmental criminologists seek to understand crime within the physical and even digital contexts where it occurs believing that crime occurs when people converge in time and space and that the environment impacts the opportunity for crime Understanding the environment aids the researcher in answering an essential question what can be done to alter the place to prevent or reduce crime However to understand complex environmental influences researchers need to engage in fieldwork Fieldwork involves researchers entering the environment they are studying to observe listen and experience the surroundings in a way that influences their understanding of the place and people in the environment This book highlights the broad array of crime types from package theft in the suburbs to poaching in the Nile basin that environmental criminology is well suited to address Finally it advances methods and techniques tests established protocols and offers reflections on experiences during fieldwork demonstrating the value of the techniques for environmental criminology and offering solutions to crime problems The chapters in this book were originally published in special issues of Criminal Justice Studies Solving Crime Problems in Residential Neighborhoods Judith D. Feins, Joel C. Epstein, Rebecca Widom, 1997 Intended to inform law enforcement officials urban planners guidelines sources of info training technical advice

Living Architecture, Living Cities Christopher Day, Julie Gwilliam, 2019-11-08 It is widely accepted that our environment is in crisis Less widely recognized is that three quarters of environmental damage is due to cities the places where most of us live As this powerful new book elucidates global sustainability is therefore directly dependent on urban design In Living Architecture Living Cities Christopher Day and Julie Gwilliam move beyond the current emphasis on technological change They argue that eco technology allows us to continue broadly as before and only defers the impending disaster In reality most negative environmental impacts are due to how we live and the things we buy Such personal choices often result from dissatisfaction with our surroundings As perceived environment has a direct effect on attitudes and motivations improving this can achieve more sustainable lifestyles more effectively than drastic building change with its notorious performance gap limitations As it is in places that our inner feelings and material reality interact perceived environment is place based Ultimately however as the root cause of unsustainability is attitude real change requires moving from the current focus on buildings and technology to an emphasis on the non material Featuring over 400 high quality illustrations this is essential reading for anyone who believes in the value and power of good design Christopher Day's philosophy will continue to inspire students with an interest in sustainable architecture urban planning and related fields

Urban Geography in Postcolonial Zimbabwe Abraham R. Matamanda, Verna Nel, Innocent Chirisa, 2021-05-07 This interdisciplinary book provides a cross sectoral and multi dimensional exploration and assessment of the urban geography perspectives in Zimbabwe Drawing on work from different disciplines the book not only contributes to academia but also seeks to inform urban policy with the view of contributing to the national aspirations of Zimbabwe attaining middle income status by 2030 Adopting a multi dimensional assessment that transcends disciplines such as urban and regional planning human and physical geography urban governance political science economics and development studies the book provides a background for co production concerning urban development in the Global South The book contributes into its analysis of the institutional and legislative framework that relates to the urban geography of Zimbabwe as these are responsible for the evolution of the urban system in the country The connections among different sectors and issues such as environment economy politics and the wider objectives of the SDGs especially goal 11 aspiring to create sustainable communities by 2030 are explored The success stories relating to urban geography in Zimbabwe are identified together with the best possible practices that may inform urban planning policy and management
