Environment Michael Bolig, 2010-05-10 A research focus on hazards risk perception and risk minimizing strategies is relatively new in the social and environmental sciences This volume by a prominent scholar of East African societies is a powerful example of this growing interest Earlier theory and research tended to describe social and economic systems in some form of equilibrium However recent thinking in human ecology evolutionary biology not to mention in economic and political theory has come to assign to risk a prominent role in predictive modeling of behavior It turns out that risk minimalization is central to the understanding of individual strategies and numerous social institutions It is not simply a peripheral and transient moment in a group s history Anthropologists interested in forager societies have emphasized risk management strategies as a major force shaping hunting and gathering routines and structuring institutions of food sharing and territorial behavior This book builds on some of these developments but through the analysis of quite complex pastoral and farming peoples and in populations with substantial known histories The method of analysis depends heavily on the controlled comparisons of different populations sharing some cultural characteristics but differing in exposure to certain risks or hazards The central questions guiding this approach are 1 How are hazards generated through environmental variation and degradation through increasing internal stratification violent conflicts and marginalization 2 How do these hazards result in damages to single households or to individual actors and how do these costs vary within one society 3 How are hazards perceived by the people affected 4 How do actors of different wealth social status age and gender try to minimize risks by delimiting the effect of damages during an on going crisis and what kind of institutionalized measures do they design to insure themselves against hazards preventing their occurrence or limiting their effects 5 How is risk minimization affected by cultural innovation and how can the importance of the quest for enhanced security as a driving force of cultural evolution be estimated Cognitive-Behavioral Interventions in Educational Settings Ray W. Gozik, Heather Barclay Hamir, 2023-07-03 Co published with While education abroad including studying volunteering researching and interning abroad is increasingly emphasized as a critical factor in preparing undergraduates for a globally interconnected world diversifying the pool of participants in such activities has proven challenging Framed within the concept of inclusive excellence with the objective of promoting diversity inclusion and equity in higher education as foundational to educational excellence the contributors present research and practices that have been proven successful in improving participation among groups of students traditionally underrepresented in education abroad Broader participation in education abroad programming has been a perennial concern at numerous higher education institutions in the U S having prompted countless discussions in professional organizations and across campuses among faculty staff and students Many have come to recognize that overseas opportunities are no longer a luxury and instead are a necessity for job seekers entering a more diverse globally interconnected workplace The volume offers a combination of research based chapters and case studies from leading experts on the barriers that disproportionately impact specific groups of students including students with disabilities first generation college students undocumented students racial and ethnic minorities science technology engineering and mathematics STEM majors and males The authors illuminate the issues which may inhibit education abroad participation from individual to institutional and present strategies reflecting a broad range of institutional contexts resources and needs While there has been significant discussion and action to promote broader inclusion in education abroad this is the first volume focusing on research and practice to achieve these ends and is intended as a critical resource for practitioners and scholars alike
