Theorising Posthuman Childhood Studies Karen Malone, Marek Tesar, Sonja Arndt, 2020-11-05 This book is a genealogical foregrounding and performance of conceptions of children and their childhoods over time We acknowledge that children's lives are embedded in worlds both inside and outside of structured schooling or institutional settings and that this relationality informs how we think about what it means to be a child living and experiencing childhood The book maps the field by taking up a cross-disciplinary genealogical niche to offer both an introduction to theoretical underpinnings of emerging theories and concepts and to provide hands-on examples of how they might play out This book positions children and their everyday lived childhoods in the Anthropocene and focuses on the interface of children's being in the everyday spaces and places of contemporary communities and societies In particular this book examines how the shift towards posthuman and new materialist perspectives continues to challenge dominant developmental social constructivist and structuralist theoretical approaches in diverse ways to help us to understand contemporary constructions of childhoods It recognises that while such dominant approaches have long been shown to limit the complexity of what it means to be a child living in the contemporary world the traditions of many Eurocentric theories have not addressed the diversity of children's lives in the majority of countries or in the Global South

New Research on Early Childhood Education Arthur T. Waddell,Rachel M. McBride,2008 Early Childhood Education spans the human life from birth to age 8 Infants and toddlers experience life more holistically than any other age group Social emotional cognitive language and physical lessons are not learned separately by very young children Adults who are most helpful to young children interact in ways that understand that the child is learning from the whole experience not just that part of the experience to which the adult gives attention Although early childhood education does not have to occur in the absence of the parent or primary caregiver this term is sometimes used to denote education by someone other than these the parent or primary caregiver Both research in the field and early childhood educators view the parents as an integral part of the early childhood education process Early childhood education takes many forms depending on the theoretical and educational beliefs of the educator or parent Other terms those are often used interchangeably with early childhood education are early childhood learning early care and early education Much of the first two years of life are spent in the creation of a child s first sense of self or the building of a first identity Because this is a crucial part of children s makeup how they first see themselves how they think they should function how they expect others to function in relation to them early care must ensure that in addition to carefully selected and trained caregivers links with family home culture and home language are a central part of program policy If care becomes a substitute for rather than a support of family children may develop a less than positive sense of who they are and where they come from because of their child care experience This book presents the latest research in this vital field

Theory of Children's Citizenship in Contemporary Societies Brian Milne, 2013-04-15 This book examines the notion of children having full citizenship It does so historically through intellectual discourse beliefs and moral and ideological positions on children It looks at the status and extent of knowledge of the position of children covering about 2500 years The book takes European and other cultures traditions and beliefs into consideration It reflects on the topic from a variety of disciplines including social sciences theology and philosophy The book places children's citizenship in the centre of children's rights discourse Part of the work is a critical appraisal of children's participation because it diverts attention away from children as members of society toward being a separable group The book moves on from child participation using a children's rights based argument toward examination of the relationship of the child with the state i.e. as potentially full member citizens Federation for Child Study Bulletin, 1929 Reprint and Circular Series of the National Research Council, 1929
