

The background of the entire cover is a warm, golden-yellow color. At the top, several paper airplanes are shown in flight, scattered across the upper portion. On the right side, two children are walking upwards; the one in front is a girl in a dress and hat, and the one behind is a boy in a jacket. At the bottom, two children are sitting on the ground, facing each other and playing with a large, round object, possibly a ball or a basket. The title 'Children of the Sun' is centered in a white rectangular area, with a large red sun behind the word 'Sun'.

Katherine Mellen Charron, 2012-03-15 Civil rights activist Septima Poinsette Clark (1898-1987) developed a citizenship education program that enabled tens of thousands of African Americans to register to vote and to link the power of the ballot to concrete strategies for individual and communal empowerment. Clark, who began her own teaching career in 1916, grounded her approach in the philosophy and practice of southern black activist educators in the decades leading up to the 1950s and 1960s, and then trained a committed cadre of grassroots black women to lead this literacy revolution in community stores, beauty shops, and churches throughout the South. In this engaging biography, Katherine Charron tells the story of Clark from her coming of age in the South Carolina lowcountry to her activism with the Southern Christian Leadership Conference in the movement's heyday. The enhanced electronic version of the book draws from archives, libraries, and the author's personal collection and includes nearly 100 letters, documents, photographs, newspaper articles, and interview excerpts, embedding each in the text where it will be most meaningful. Featuring more than 60 audio clips, more than 2.5 hours total.
