Cibse Guide A Environmental Design 198:

Environmental Design Randall Thomas, 2006-06-07 Written and edited by a team of specialists at Max Fordham LLP one of the UK's leading environmental and building services engineering consultancies Environmental Design is the result of their extensive experience in designing environmentally friendly buildings The principles of their approach which they have taught in numerous schools of architecture and engineering are clearly presented here The book starts with some basic scientific principles and environmental issues and then moves on to site planning energy use materials and building form Natural ventilation systems high efficiency mechanical equipment and alternative energy sources are also covered State of the art buildings of exceptional quality are incorporated throughout the text and illustrate the authors belief that environmentally responsible architecture can be visually exciting They conclude with a selection of detailed case studies of award winning projects including new for this third edition Beaufort Court King's Langley and the National Trust Headquarters Swindon This book is essential reading for architects engineers planners and students of these disciplines

Running Buildings on Natural Energy Sue Roaf, Fergus Nicol, 2018-12-07 New thinking is essential if we are to design and occupy buildings that can keep us safe with unpredictable economies climates energy systems and resource challenges For too long designers have relied on mechanical solutions for heating cooling and ventilating buildings The 21st century dream has to be of a better architecture that enables buildings to be run for as much of a day or year as possible on local clean reliable affordable natural energy Examples are included from different climates where the fundamental building design is right its orientation opening sizes mass and its natural ventilation systems and pathways Many modern buildings are poorly designed for climate as manifested by growing incidences of overheating experienced indoors explored here The inability of many rating systems to record and improve the climatic design of buildings raises questions about how they deal with issues of basic building performance This book points the way towards how we can understand such problems and move forward from over mechanised poorly designed buildings to a new generation of adaptable buildings designed and refurbished to run largely on natural energy and capable of evolving over time to keep their occupants safe and comfortable even in a warming world The chapters were originally published in Architectural Science Review

Geographies of Comfort Danny McNally, Laura Price, Philip Crang, 2020-12-29 Bringing together conceptual and empirical research from leading thinkers this book critically examines comfort in everyday life in an era of continually occurring social political and environmental changes Comfort and discomfort have assumed a central position in a range of works examining the relations between place and emotion the senses affect and materiality This book argues that the emergence of this theme reflects how questions of comfort intersect humanistic cultural political and materialist registers of understanding the world It highlights how geographies of comfort becomes a timely concern for Human Geography after its cultural emotional and affective aspects More specifically comfort has become a vital theme for work on mobilities home environment and environmentalism sociability in public space and the body Comfort is recognized as more than just a sensory experience through which we understand the world its presence absence and pursuit actively make and un make the world In light of this recognition this book engages deeply with comfort as both an analytic approach and an object of analysis This book offers international and interdisciplinary perspectives that deploys the lens of comfort to make sense of the textures of everyday life in a variety of geographical contexts It will appeal to those working in human geography anthropology feminist theory cultural studies and sociology

The Colour, Light and Contrast Manual Keith Bright, Geoffrey Cook, 2010-01-06 Endorsed by the Society of Light and Lighting this practical book offers comprehensive guidance on how colour light and contrast can be incorporated within buildings to enhance their usability The book provides state of the art clear guidance as well as a valuable information source for busy professionals involved in the design or management of new and existing environments The ways colour light and contrast are used within built environments are critical in determining how people interact with the space and how confident safe and secure they will feel when doing so They also have a major influence on a person's sense of well being and their ability to use the environment independently and without undue effort Understanding how to use colour and contrast and how they are influenced by both natural and artificial lighting is vital for all those involved in the design and management of the environments and spaces we all use In recent years there has been a considerable amount of work undertaken to further our understanding of how colour light and contrast affect emotion and sensory abilities and how they can assist or hinder people in their everyday lives Other publications consider these issues individually but The Colour Light and Contrast Manual designing and managing inclusive built environments draws knowledge and information together to produce a unique comprehensive and informative guide to how the three elements can work together to improve the design and management of environments for us all Supporting website at www.wiley.com/go/brightandcook
