Cites Commercially Exploited Fish Species Overexploitation:

The Use of CITES for Commercially-exploited Fish Species Solène Guggisberg, 2015-12-11 This book examines the legality adequacy and efficacy of using the Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species of Wild Fauna and Flora CITES for commercially exploited fish species and assesses whether the existing institutional cooperation with the Food and Agriculture Organization FAO and regional fisheries management organizations RFMOs is efficient This case study also provides an interesting lens to approaching wider international law issues Indeed finding ways to achieve effective governance of transboundary or global natural resources is central to the peaceful use of oceans and land Furthermore the role of science in advising decision makers is a sensitive issue which deserves scrutiny and is similar in many regimes Finally the complex problem of fragmentation of international law is acute in various fields of environmental law as in all rapidly developing areas of international regulations

Strengthening International Fisheries Law in an Era of Changing Oceans Richard Caddell, Erik J Molenaar, 2019-04-04 This collection addresses the central question of how the current international framework for the regulation of fisheries may be strengthened in order to meet the challenges posed by changing fisheries and ocean conditions in particular climate change International fisheries law has developed significantly since the 1990s through the adoption and establishment of international instruments and bodies at the global and regional levels Global fish stocks nevertheless remain in a troubling state and fisheries management authorities face a wide array of internal and external challenges including operational constraints providing effective management advice in the face of scientific uncertainty and non compliance by States with their international obligations This book examines these challenges and identifies options and pathways to strengthen international fisheries law While it has a primarily legal focus it also features significant contributions from specialists drawn from other disciplines notably fisheries science economics policy and international relations in order to provide a fuller context to the legal policy and management issues raised Rigorous and comprehensive in scope this will be essential reading for lawyers and non lawyers interested in international fisheries regulation in the context of profoundly changing ocean conditions

Implementing the Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species of Wild Fauna and Flora through national fisheries legal frameworks Nakamura, J.N. and Kuemlangan, B., 2020-11-11 An increasing number of commercially exploited and managed aquatic species has been listed in the Appendices to the Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species of Wild Fauna and Flora CITES triggering the attention from the fisheries sector of States on how listing would impact on the management of the relevant fisheries CITES regulates international trade in certain aquatic species including those which are and can be commercially exploited and which are being managed by the fisheries sector The fisheries sector legal frameworks will have to recognize and enable the various requirements provided for in CITES including the making of non detriment findings and ensuring that there is a designated management authority and scientific authority to take certain decisions in respect of listed commercially exploited and managed aquatic species This sourcebook provides clarifications on the relationship of CITES with the fisheries sector and provides guidance on how national fisheries legal frameworks can optimize the implementation of CITES The realisation of this sourcebook in 2020 designated as a super year for nature and biodiversity represents a timely and useful contribution to fisheries management by i raising awareness of CITES ii enhancing comprehension of the CITES regime and its relationship with the fisheries sector and iii where a deliberate decision is made by a country to implement CITES through its national fisheries legal frameworks providing guidance as to what do it and how to do it International Law of Sharks

Erika J. Techera, Natalie Klein, 2017-04-18 In International Law of Sharks Erika J Techera and Natalie Klein provide an in depth analysis of the current legal frameworks that relate to these important species The authors offer ways in which to overcome obstacles that prevent existing laws from working better and identify best practice global governance options while highlighting opportunities for legal reform Scientific evidence indicates that sharks play a critical role in maintaining marine ecosystem health yet current governance regimes have not been effective and many shark species continue to diminish In this context effective laws are critical to improve sharks conservation status This volume also explores the broader relevance of oceans governance by identifying appropriate legal frameworks and regulatory mechanisms that balance conservation and utilisation of marine species in general Market Denial and International Fisheries Regulation Darren S.

Calley, 2011-10-14 Flag of convenience fishing seriously undermines efforts to protect the marine environment To counter this threat Market Denial and International Fisheries Regulation rests on the logic of the most basic tenet of economics if no market exists for a product then producers will cease to produce Denying market access to the flag of convenience fishing fleet should significantly reduce instances of illegal unreported and unregulated IUU fishing In areas beyond national jurisdiction not only is market denial the most effective means of undermining the IUU fleet it is for most practical purposes the only way to do so To what extent however do the laws of the sea and international trade allow groups of States to close their markets to non compliant fishing vessels CITES as a Tool for Sustainable Development Marie-Claire Cordonier

Segger, David Andrew Wardell, Alexandra Harrington, 2023-08-10 Reviews the key legal and policy innovations along endangered flora and fauna value chains for CITES to promote more sustainable development The Development of the

Law of the Sea by UNCLOS Dispute Settlement Bodies Lan Ngoc Nguyen, 2023-02-09 A critical assessment of how UNCLOS dispute settlement bodies develop the law the sea and factors that explain such development Governance of Marine Fisheries and Biodiversity Conservation Serge M. Garcia, Jake Rice, Anthony Charles, 2014-07-15 Governance of Marine Fisheries and Biodiversity Conservation explores governance of the world's oceans with a focus on the impacts of two inter connected but historically separate streams of governance one for fisheries the other for biodiversity conservation Chapters most co authored by leading experts from both streams investigate the interaction of these governance streams from ecological economic social and legal perspectives with emphasis on policies institutions processes and outcomes on scales from the global to the local community and with coverage of a range of themes and regions of the world The book opens with chapters setting the historical context for the two marine governance streams and framing the book's exploration of whether as the streams increasingly interact there will be merger or collision convergence or co evolution The concluding chapter synthesizes the insights from throughout the book relative to the questions posed in the opening chapters It also draws conclusions about future needs and directions in the governance of marine fisheries and biodiversity vital to the future of the world's oceans With cutting edge chapters written by many leading international experts in fisheries management and biodiversity conservation and edited by three leading figures in this crucially important subject Governance of Marine Fisheries and Biodiversity Conservation is an essential purchase for fisheries scientists economists resource managers and policymakers and all those working in fields of biodiversity conservation marine ecology and coastal livelihoods Libraries in all universities and research establishments where environmental and or marine studies conservation ocean policy and law biological and life sciences and fisheries management are studied and taught should have copies of this most important book

Allocating International Responsibility Between Member States and International Organisations Nikolaos Voulgaris, 2019-05-16 The ever growing interaction between member States and international organisations results all too often in situations of non conformity with international law eg peacekeeping operations international economic adjustment programmes counter terrorism sanctions Seven years after the finalisation of the International Law Commission's Articles on the Responsibility of International Organisations ARIO international law on the allocation of international responsibility between these actors still remains unsettled The confusion around the nature and normative calibre of the relevant rules the paucity of relevant international practice supporting them and the lack of a clear and principled framework for their elaboration impairs their application and restricts their ability to act as effective regulatory formulas This study aims to offer doctrinal clarity in this area of law and purports to serve as a point of reference for all those with a vested interest in the topic For the first time since the publication of the ARIO all international responsibility issues dealing with interactions between member States and international organisations are put together in one book under a common approach Structured around a systematisation of the interactions between these actors the study provides an analytical framework for the regulation of indirect responsibility scenarios Based on the ideas of the intellectual fathers of international law such as Scelle's d doublement fonctionnel theory and Ago's derivative responsibility model the book employs old ideas to add original argumentation to a topic that has been dealt with extensively by recent commentators Federal Regulatory Guide CQ Press, 2020-04-28 The Federal Regulatory Directory Eighteenth Edition continues to offer a clear path through the maze of complex federal agencies and regulations providing to the point analysis of regulations Information packed profiles of more than 100 federal agencies and departments detail the history structure purpose actions and key contacts for every regulatory agency in the U S government Now updated with an improved searching structure the Federal Regulatory Directory continues to be the leading reference for understanding federal regulations providing a richer more targeted exploration than is possible by cobbling together electronic and print sources Endangered Species Bulletin, 1995 Endangered Species Technical Bulletin, 1997 The Quest for Sustainable International Fisheries Evelyne Meltzer, Susanna Fuller, 2009 A publication of the National Research Council of Canada Monograph Publishing Program Birnie, Boyle, and Redgwell's International Law and the Environment Alan E. Boyle, Catherine Redgwell, 2021 As conservation of the environment plays an increasingly important role within society Birnie Boyle and Redgwell's International Law and the Environment continues to be an essential read for students and practitioners alike Whilst remaining rooted within the substantive law the book places legislation on the protection of the environment firmly at the core of the text Written by experts in the field the authors employ sharp and thorough analysis of the laws allowing them to share their extensive knowledge and experience with the reader The authors provide a unique perspective on the implications of international regulation promoting a wider understanding of the pertinent issues impacting upon the law

Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species of Wild Fauna and Flora U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. Wildlife Permit Office, 1983 Antarctic Ecosystems K.R. Kerry, G. Hempel, 2012-12-06 Antarctic Ecosystems comprises 55 papers presented at the Fifth Symposium on Antarctic Biology held under the auspices of the Scientific Committee on Antarctic Research SCAR in Hobart Australia 29 August 3 September 1988 Both short and long term changes in ecosystems and community structures caused by natural and human factors were discussed to help understand the ecological processes taking place in a changing environment The variability of ecological factors must be known for the development of realistic monitoring strategies and sound conservation practices

Federal Register, 2013-04 THE 2030 AGENDA AND THE SUSTAINABLE DEVELOPMENT GOALS: THE CHALLENGE FOR AQUACULTURE DEVELOPMENT AND MANAGEMENT Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, 2018-11-08 This report explores the alignment of aquaculture with the 2030 agenda's goals and targets suggesting that existing guidance needs strengthening in cross cutting areas such as poverty alleviation and resource use efficiency

Between Preservation and Exploitation Kemi Fuentes-George, 2016-03-25 A study of biodiversity governance analyzes the factors that determine the effectiveness of transnational advocacy networks and the importance of justice claims to conservation In the late 2000s ordinary citizens in Jamaica and Mexico demanded that government put a stop to lucrative but environmentally harmful economic development activities bauxite mining in Jamaica and large scale tourism and overfishing on the eastern coast of the Yucatán Peninsula In each case the catalyst for the campaign was information gathered and disseminated by transnational advocacy networks TANs of researchers academics and activists Both campaigns were successful despite opposition from industry supporters Meanwhile simultaneous campaigns to manage land in another part of the Yucatán and to conserve migratory birds in Egypt had far less success In this book Kemi Fuentes George uses these four cases to analyze factors that determine the success or failure of efforts by TANs to persuade policymakers and private sector actors in developing countries to change environmental behavior Fuentes George argues that in order to influence the design and implementation of policy TANs must generate a scientific consensus create social relationships with local actors and advocate for biodiversity in a way that promotes local environmental justice Environmentally just policies would allow local populations access to their lands provided they use natural resources sustainably Justice claims are also more likely to generate needed support among local groups for conservation projects In their conservation efforts Jamaica Mexico and Egypt were attempting to meet their obligations under the UN Convention on Biological Diversity and other regional agreements Fuentes George s innovative analysis shows the importance of local environmental justice for the implementation of international environmental treaties
